FRANCE BALKS AT WAR DEMAND

Extended Service For Guardsmen Seen

MORE THAN ONE YEAR IN ARMY NOW INDICATED

National Guard Association Demands Answers Upon Service Questions.

FUTURE IN DOUBT

Tough Physical Tests For Middle-Aged Officers Hit By Convention.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Army officials have tacitly informed high ranking members of the national guard that guardsmen may have to remain on active duty "indefinitely," instead of for only one year as provided in present law, International News Service learned today.

The information came in response to repeated demands from the National Guard association, which is in convention in Washington, that the army inform it just what is going to happen to the guard after the present emergency.

As Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commander of the Maryland National Guard, put the problem, guard leaders fear they ultimately will be replaced as a voluntary American defense institution by the compulsory conscript army which is being raised under the selective service law.

Seeking to placate them, army officials told convention leaders that much of the national defense program depended on the guard, since it is charged directly with responsibility for training the conscriptees. Along this line, officers of the regular establishment said the guard should shoulder that task to the exclusion of all else, leaving the plain implication that their services may be required for more than the statutory year.

This admonishment, however, failed to satisfy guard leaders, they said privately today. Despite admission that the regular army depends on their good offices, commissioned guardsmen said they still were asking the answers to a number of questions. Among them:

1. Since the guard is being called out well ahead of the conscripts, what is going to happen to the training program after the

Machinery Ready for Drawing of Draft Numbers Oct. 29

Considerable ceremony will be involved in the hours-long drawing of draft numbers in Washington, Oct. 29, according to plans announced by the selective headquarters in the national capital. Lieut. Col. Charles R. Morris, U. S. A. retired, of Elizabeth, N. J., top left, who blindfolded President Wilson and Secretary of War Newton D. Baker before the drawing in 1917, will perform the same duty for Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, top right, when he draws the first number shortly after noon, Oct. 29. Photo, top center, shows Secretary Baker drawing the first number in the 1917 draft. The Washington auditorium, where the drawing will be held, is pictured at lower left, and a handful of non-transparent capsules containing the numbers is shown at lower right.

Nazis Reticent On Meeting of Fuehrer, Laval

Hitler Reported Worried By Chance of Rebellion By Conquered Foe; Vichy Government Stages Raids On Communists.

(By Associated Press)

Triple defiance of reported Axis pressure on France to join the war against Great Britain emerged today following a mysterious meeting "somewhere in France" between Adolf Hitler and French Vice Premier Pierre Laval.

The vanquished republic will undertake "no military, naval or aerial action against England," a French government spokesman said.

"France will not declare war on England under any circumstances," he added.

(Reports from Berlin previously said events seemed to be shaping toward an attempt to join surviving craft of the French navy with the German and Italian fleets for a combined smash at Britain's sea power.)

While Nazi officialdom and the German press displayed extreme reticence on the Hitler-Laval meeting, indications arose that the Reichsfuehrer was concerned over a possible upsurge of rebellion in the conquered republic.

Authorized quarters in Berlin described the meeting as the best answer to British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's efforts to "stir up" the French against the Rome-Berlin Axis.

Simultaneously, Premier Marshal Philippe Petain's French government at Vichy pressed an attack on a widespread "Communist" movement in unoccupied France, accused of spreading propaganda in favor of the "Free French" leadership of Gen. Charles De Gaulle.

Police raided a Communist headquarters in Marseille, arresting 75 persons, including 13 women, and confiscating a large amount of De Gaulle propaganda. Other arrests were announced in Vichy's suburbs, at Lyon and in the Loire department.

From Switzerland came suggestions that France was being offered an extremely generous final peace with her German-Italian conquerors in return for declaring war against Britain.

Some observers expressed belief that anything even approaching such a consummation would require the removal of France's chief of state, the 84-year-old Marshal Petain, and the septugenarian Maxime Weygand, once generalissimo of the French and British armies and now France's head man in Africa.

Both these men are reported to oppose open conflict with Britain, even though they are said to have approved such defensive blows as those in last July's naval battle at Oran and the recent affair at Dakar, Senagal.

Laval, content thus far to work through Petain, was pictured as the logical king-pin in a changeover.

Foreign circles in Rome heard that Hitler sounded out Laval on a plan for a temporary settlement which would make France, Italy and Germany "collaborators" in the war—with Laval promised still greater power in France, and Germany to a diin French reconstruction.

German air raids on Britain eased off sharply last night and early today, according to reports from London. The British said a gray haze and the alert action of their defenses kept the attacks down to mere "flea-bites."

The Germans insisted they had

HITS AT G. O. P. 'FALSEHOODS'

Gore Says Roosevelt, Hull Only Ones Knowing Dangers Which U. S. Faces.

Branding as "filthy falsehoods" charges made by anti-New Dealers that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull were "war mongers," Congressman Albert Gore of Tennessee told approximately 800 persons attending a Democratic rally at John Simpson auditorium last night that the "peace of the world depended on the continuation of New Deal foreign policies."

Gore, only 30, and one of the youngest legislators in Washington, praised the New Deal for its firm stand against appeasement, declaring that the United States should "stand firm and appease nobody."

"We are ready," he said, "to defend America if it takes the last dollar and the last man."

Congressman Gore spoke in place of Senator Claude Pepper, scheduled to appear here but who was suddenly taken ill and was forced to cancel the engagement.

One by one he reviewed the acts of the Roosevelt administration in dealing with foreign affairs and stated that "only Franklin D. Roosevelt and Cordell Hull know the dangers the United States faces and have a thorough knowledge of world affairs practiced in foreign relations."

Stating that he favored unlimited aid to Great Britain, Gore

FDR Plans Radio Talk; Willkie Sees Al Smith

'Takes Off Gloves' In Philadelphia Address

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt, in the words of Secretary Ickes, will "take off his gloves" in a major political address at Philadelphia tonight, first of five or six he will make before election in taking over personal command of his campaign's home stretch drive.

An eight-car special train was made ready to take the chief executive to the scene of his second avowedly political address of the campaign—the Philadelphia convention hall where Wendell L. Willkie was nominated as the Republican presidential standard bearer.

Before taking to the platform, Mr. Roosevelt planned to make a motor tour which will carry him across the Delaware river to the New York shipbuilding yards at Camden, N. J., and then back

Disputes Roosevelt Ability to Keep Out of War

(By Associated Press)

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN ENROUTE TO NEW YORK—Disputing President Roosevelt's ability to keep the United States out of foreign wars, Wendell L. Willkie headed east from Chicago today for a series of campaign addresses and a dinner conference with Alfred E Smith.

Willkie's aides announced that Smith, 1928 Democratic presidential nominee who is supporting the present Republican candidate, would board the latter's special train at Harmon, N. Y., early this evening and ride to New York.

There Willkie will make three night addresses, in the Bronx Coliseum, at Manhattan Center, and at the New York Herald Tribune Forum.

'BUTTON GIRLS' RUN OVER CITY

Sixty Carry 'No Third Term' Stickers, Badges, Literature Throughout Mansfield.

Sixty girls wearing little red hats and carrying red bags filled with campaign buttons and stickers took the Willkie "No Third Term" campaign to all parts of Mansfield today, while county Republicans prepared to greet three of their major candidates at a rally tonight at G. O. P. headquarters.

Working under the direction of the independent Willkie-for-President headquarters in Mansfield, the girl campaigners stood at every main street intersection downtown and at the city's industrial plants to hand out "No Third Term" buttons, windshield stickers, and literature.

Boosting the campaign in Mansfield was a special Willkie motor coach which visited the city before noon, announcing a radio talk on the third term issue by the Republican presidential candidate at 10:30 p. m. today.

Suggested by Willkie, "No Third Term" day is being observed today by Willkie supporters all over the nation.

Speakers at the Republican rally tonight at party headquarters on North Main street will be Mayor Frank H. Burton of Cleveland, candidate for U. S. Senator; Congressman J. Harry McGregor, seeking re-election and Paul Herbert, lieutenant

THREATENS FDR

Government Clerk Admits He Planned Assassination.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Edward De Roulhac Blount, 30-year-old government clerk, was under indictment today on charges of twice threatening to kill President Roosevelt.

Blount, son of a retired lawyer, pleaded guilty at his preliminary hearing before a United States commissioner, but his attorney said he would plead innocence when he was arraigned in district court Friday. He is free on $5,000 bond.

Government attorneys said that on two occasions Blount asserted he would kill the president at the first opportunity.

Blount formerly lived in Evansville, Ind.

QUESTIONED: France Asked For Statement of Position

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Almost coincident with French Vice Premier Pierre Laval's conference with Adolf Hitler, the state department, an authoritative source said today, has asked the French government at Vichy for a full and frank statement of its position toward Great Britain and Germany.

According to the International News Service's informant, the question was raised in a conference yesterday between Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and the French ambassador, Gaston Henri-Haye.

What the envoy told Welles was not revealed, but in talks with American newspapermen he has stressed the idea that France is acting with as much independence of Germany as its position as a conquered power allows.

But, whatever the position of French Premier Marshal Henri Petain and the rest of his cabinet may be, the opinion of Washington officials that Laval is virtually an agent of Berlin has crystallized now into hard and set conviction. The only question in the minds of Washington policymakers is whether the swarthy one-time mayor of Lyons will be able to carry the rest of his Vichy colleagues with him in complete subservience to Hitler.

Laval, in the view of best-informed diplomatic sources, has staked his entire political career on what they describe as the "German game." He is ready, they say, to enter into any sort of alliance with Germany that will enable France to move its capital back to Paris, establish a larger

During her long stay, scores of letters, phone calls and personal visitors were received in the attempt to establish her identity

She awoke this morning long enough to make known her identity. Her condition, while not critical, still is regarded as dangerous

Absent Voters' Ballots Drop As Compared to '36 Election

Despite the heated national, state and county campaigns, only 241 Richland countians had voted absent ballots today at the county election board as compared to 304 at the same time in the 1936 presidential campaign.

The absent vote so far, however, is 10 times that of two years ago when the vote on Oct. 22 totaled only 24 ballots.

Persons who will be more than 50 miles from home election day may vote absentee ballots on Oct 31. Ballots for disabled voters will not be available until Friday. They must also be marked and returned to the election board by Oct. 31.

Persons requesting disabled voters' ballots must submit an affidavit signed by a reputable physician showing that the person will not be able to go to the polls Nov. 5.

Election board officials said today that Mansfield voters whose house numbers have been changed since the last election will be asked to give their old and new addresses to the presiding judges at voting booths election day so as to establish their eligibility to vote

Registered voters who have moved since the close of the registration period may transfer at the election board headquarters before election so they won't lose their voting right this fall.

Waters said the pool would be constructed next year near Mt. Orab, with the state division of conservation and natural resources purchasing about 400 acres of shore land around the circumference.

JOINS ARMY TO ESCAPE CLINK

Court Takes Drunken Driver at His Word.

FREMONT — (INS) — Roy Williams, 21, of Sandusky, is in the army today instead of sitting in city jail.

Arrested for driving while intoxicated, he was fined $500 and given a six-month jail sentence. Unable to pay his fine, he faced 16 months behind bars when he said he wished he were in the army.

The court took him at his wish, commuted his sentence, and saw to it that Williams joined the army.

HELD: Carol and Lupescu Arrested for Iron Guards

SEVILLE, Spain—(AP)—Former King Carol of Rumania and his long-time friend, red-haired Magda Lupescu, who fled from Bucharest with him, were placed under virtual arrest today with the possibility that they would be returned to Nazi-controlled Rumania.

Also placed under arrest was Ernst Urdareanu, one-time minister of the palace, who accompanied the pair when Carol abdicated the throne and went into exile.

All three appeared shocked when the police apprised them of the sudden change in their fortunes. Carol had been reported making preparations for going to the United States, and frequently since his arrival here had been in telephonic communication with Lisbon, Portugal.

The police told the ex-monarch and the others they would be sent to Granada while their case was under consideration.

Urdareanu was reported to have raised hands which trembled and in a faltering voice exclaimed:

"They'll kill me if we are sent back to Rumania. How is extradition possible?"

(Reports from Bucharest had quoted Rumanian officials as saying that the government had decided to ask for the extradition of Mme. Lupescu and Urdareanu. The Iron Guard in Rumania has demanded the arrest and trial of Mme. Lupescu.

(An editorial in Arriba yesterday accused Carol's two companions of complicity in the assassination of a former Iron Guard chief.)

PERSONAL TAX PERIOD DELAYED

Mailing of Statements Held Up Pending Completion of Duplicate.

Richland county's personal tax collection for the last half of the year, scheduled to open this week, will not get under way until the first of next week, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today. Books will remain open one month.

The auditor said the classified tax duplicate had not been completed in his office and would not be turned over to the county treasurer until later this week.

The treasurer must mail statements to property owners after receiving the duplicate before he can open the tax books. He said the statements would go out this week if the duplicate is in his hands within the next two days.

The last half personal tax bill, covering levies on household goods, stocks and bonds, office and factory equipment, livestock and farm equipment, will amount to slightly more than $100,000 for the period, the auditor said.

A number of property holders paid their personal tax for the full year during the first half collection last spring.

When the tax books open the auditor will place a number of deputies at desks in the courthouse corridor to help property owners fill out their tax returns.

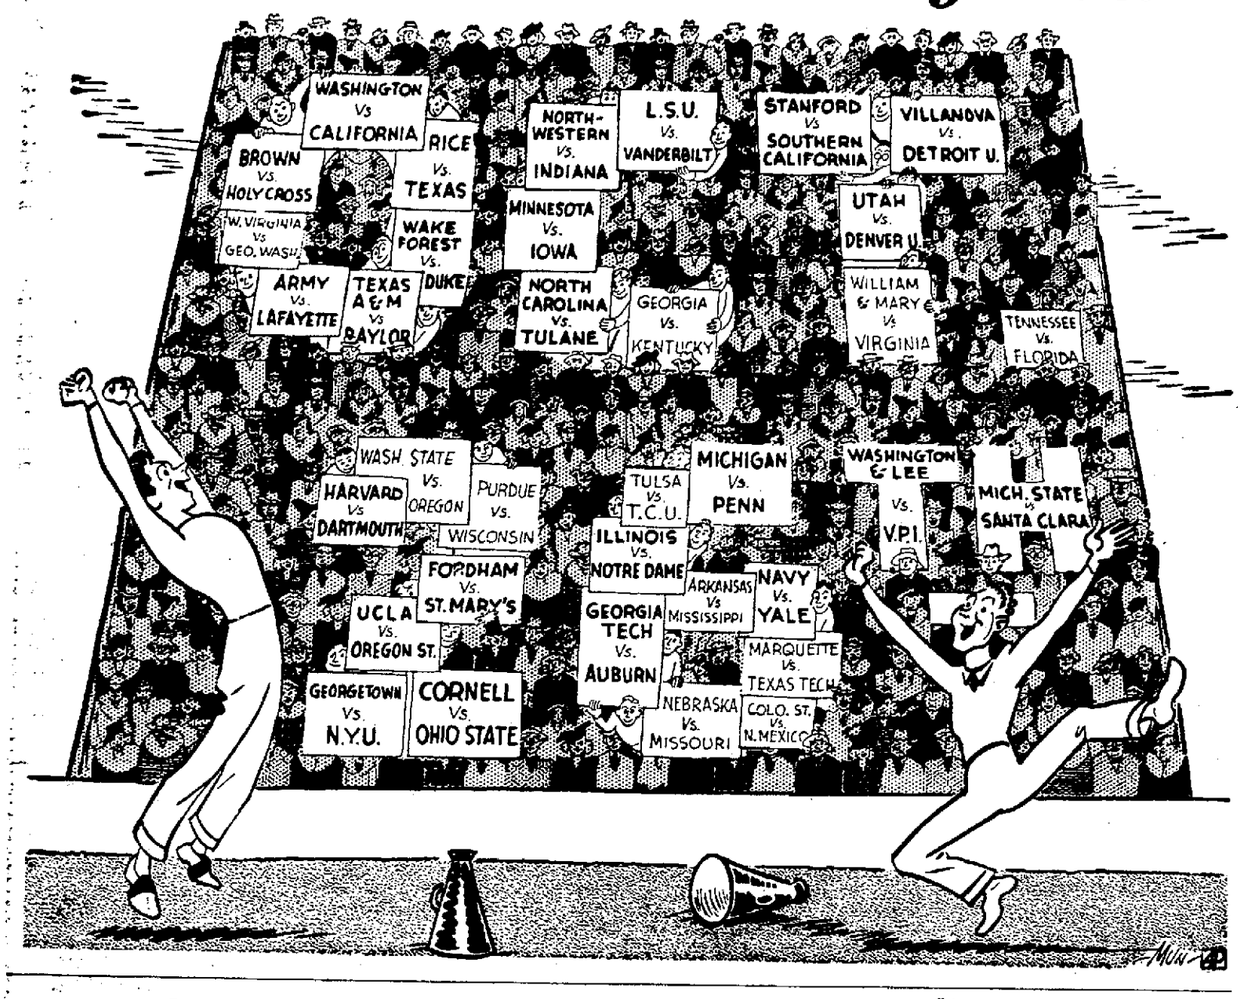
Notre Dame Line Holds Answer to National Title Bid

It's In The Cards - - - By Mun'



Few Stars On Club

Irish Team Untested So Far This Season; Line Is Fast, Has Spirit.

By EARL HILLIGAN

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP)—Here's a six-word description of that Notre Dame forward wall by the man who built it—"Just one of those party lines."

The speaker is Joe Boland, Notre Dame's chief line coach. His teaching is playing a big part in the gridiron saga which the Irish are writing brilliantly this season. But after watching his charges in three games—in which Notre Dame has indicated it is headed toward a national championship — Boland says frankly that he doesn't know whether it's a great line.

"I'll admit they put on quite a 'party' against Pacific, Georgia Tech and Carnegie but I'll wager that few fans know the names of our linemen," he said today. "Yet I don't think that's surprising, because they are all about on a par. There isn't a standout in the first string."

That may be so, but those who saw the Irish roll the last three Saturdays are convinced that this line performs as consistently as any in Notre Dame history. Its big virtues, says Boland, are speed and team spirit.

The first line consists of Bob Dove and John O'Brien at the ends; Tom Gallagher (only first team lineman back from last year) and Paul Lillis, at the tackles; Pete Kelly and John Gubanich (at 161 pounds the midget of the team) at the guards, and Center Bob Osterman, a senior who two years ago was an end on the "B" squad, the Notre Dame tenth team.

"The opposition thus far hasn't been strong enough for an adequate test," Boland said. "Our second stringers, largely sophomores and juniors, also have been untested."

These six high school students will lead the great Massillon band when it performs between halves of the Massillon-Mansfield grid contest at Stadium field at 8 p. m. Friday night. Mansfield Working on Defense To Halt Massillon's Attack

"Play Was Legal," Lou Little Says

NEW YORK —(INS)— Charges at Atlanta, Ga., that the winning touchdown scored last Saturday by Columbia against the University of Georgia was illegal were scoffed at today by Coach Lou Little of Columbia.

* * *

Little declared the Georgia cameraman must have had his machine at the wrong angle when he took a photograph which he declared showed the play was not a lateral pass but really a forward pass.

* * *

"That play was definitely legal," Little declared. "Bayer, who caught the lateral from Will, was certainly behind Will. I asked the boy about it and he assured me he was."

Coach Snyder Sends Team Through Stiff Workouts For Friday's Game.

THERE is a group of serious-minded football players scampering around the practice field at Mansfield Senior high today.

Faced with their toughest assignment of the season, the Mansfield Tygers are working at full speed in an effort to set up a defense to throttle the undefeated Massillon high combine under the arcs at 8 p. m. Friday at Stadium field.

With every member of the squad in top physical shape, Coach Paul Snyder is seeking the spark to set the Tyger touchdown attack into full speed.

The team possesses a potent running attack, but it boggs down every time the club penetrates deep into the enemy territory and Snyder hopes he can correct the weakness before Friday night.

Massillon comes here sporting one of the greatest records ever compiled by a high school team. The club is undefeated this season and has marked up 29 consecutive triumphs.

Even the most rabid Mansfield fans are conceding Massillon a victory, but they believe the Tyger team will give the invaders a real test.

Coach Paul Brown's Tigers have one of the best lines in the school's history and Snyder and the Tygers are hoping they can gain ground through a defense that has held all opposition scoreless this season.

* * *

Leading the Massillon attack is Horace Gillom, giant colored end, who is a demon on end-around plays and pass catching. He has scored at least two touchdowns in every tilt this season. Gillom tops the Toledoes at 190 and is fast and shifty.

Giants Face Test Sunday

New York Club Tackles Chicago Bear Team.

NEW YORK —(INS)— The New York Giants, champions of the eastern division of the national professional football league, today faced their biggest game before the second biggest crowd of the local football season with dire forebodings. The game they must win probably will be lost when they tangle up with the Chicago Bears on Sunday.

* * *

A crowd of close to 40,000 —second only to the gathering expected for the Army - Notre Dame tussle next month—will witness the spectacle of the Giants trying to cling to their slipping championship in the tussle with the tough, rough and extremely large Bears, and all the advance calculations favor the invaders.

* * *

The Giants are stout defensively, as they usually are, but they will play the game without Tuffy Leemans, one of the greatest groundgainers in the league, and Frank Cope, the starting left tackle, may miss most of the action. Both were injured last Sunday in the game with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Leemans is definitely out, which is the same as saying the Giants will gain some 50 or so less yards and will be without their most dependable threat.

Ligaments were torn loose from his spine. Cope will start, according to plans, but he has a leg that may fold at any minute due to a knee injury, which has caused him to hike two and three miles a day trying to get the soreness and stiffness out of it.

BOWMAN SCHOOL swamped West Fifth, 26 to 0, yesterday to gain a share of the Grade School touch football league championship.

The Bowman team marked up seven wins and suffered one defeat in the league. Majors led the Bowman attack by pounding into pay dirt twice.

Newman, which had an opportunity to share the crown, fell by the wayside by dropping a 10 to 8 decision to Western yesterday. The Newman team was one of the pre-season favorites to win the title.

Automotive Supplies Meet Sandusky Club On High School Field

THE Mansfield Automotive Supplies semi-pro machine will go after its first game of the season next Sunday afternoon when it shows its wares in the Sandusky high school stadium at Sandusky.

The Supplies will engage the Sandusky Maroons, semi-pro team, in a contest scheduled for 2:30 p. m. at the Sandusky high field.

With a team riddled with injuries, the Supplies two weeks ago battled the strong Carrollton Indians to a 6-6 tie. They suffered their worst defeat of the season last Sunday when they dropped a 32 to 0 decision to the Minerva Merchants at Minerva.

Folmer Returns for Marion Grid Contest

WITH only two days of practice behind them this week, the Madison high school Rams today are awaiting their encounter with a strong Marion St. Mary's grid machine at 8 p. m. Thursday under the lights at Madison's field.

Coach Al Fendrick was to put his proteges through their final practice session after school today before tomorrow night's tilt, in which the Rams will still be striving for that first win of the season.

They lost their sixth straight contest of the season last Friday night when they dropped a 31 to 0 decision to a strong Norwalk high aggregation.

Line charging has been the keynote of this week's sessions, as Fendrick sought to bolster the Madison line, the one big weakness of his squad this season.

Fendrick stated earlier in the week that the same team that started against Norwalk last week will open against the Irish, with one possible exception.

Bill Folmer, who has been ill for the past few weeks, is expected to return to his position at center, and Jack Spriesterbach, who has been in at center, will be shifted to tackle, his regular position on the team.

* * *

Marion will bring a strong fast team here for the Madison engagement, with Young Tom Schuler, a speedy left half, as the main cog of the machine.

Renew Old Grid Rivalry

Unbeaten Ohio Wesleyan, Ohio U. Clash Saturday.

DELAWARE —(INS)— One of Ohio's oldest and most bitter football rivalries will be renewed Saturday afternoon at Ohio Wesleyan's Selby field when two of the state's unbeaten collegiate elevens play before a homecoming crowd.

Ohio university's unbeaten Bobcats, tied only by Butler, will tangle with the likewise unbeaten Bishops in a renewal of a grid feud which dates back to the early days of the old Buckeye conference. The Bishops' record to date shows two scoreless ties with Muskingum and Wayne and victories over Miami, 24-7, and Depauw, 26-19.

* * *

Don Peden, who watched his Bobcats win their 100th victory under his supervision last Saturday against Furman, will depend on Danny Risaliti and Jimmy Snyder, two Canton boys, for the major portion of the scoring activities. Veteran Coach George Gauthier has 12 capable backs but will be lacking in capable line replacements.

However, the Bishops first string line is rugged enough to go the distance.

Basketball Back at State

Olsen Issues Call For First Workout Tomorrow.

COLUMBUS (INS) Faced with the loss of three key men from last year's team and a rigorous 20-game schedule, the 1940-41 Ohio State basketball squad will assemble tomorrow at the call of Coach Harold G. Olsen for the first workout of the season.

Missing from the ranks of the quintet which carried the Buck colors to third place in the Big Ten last season will be Capt. Bob Lynch, guard, and Centers John Schick and Bill Sattler.

It doesn't take a stretch of imagination to prophecy that the center post will be a wide-open battle with no veterans to replace the missing Schick and Sattler.

However, the forward posts are pretty well taken care of. Capt. Gil Nicholson will hold down one of the upcourt posts while Dick Fisher, of football fame, Bill Goss, the Anderson, Ind., product; Al Marzano, Newark's sharp-shooter; Laverne Toms, a sophomore from Celina, are all expected to battle for the other job.

Jack Graf, another footballer and member of two great Upper Arlington quintets of a few years back, will probably get the bid at one guard post while Jack Dawson and Jed Mees, both seniors and lettermen, will fight it out for the other position.

The Buck schedule begins Dec. 10 against West Virginia, and includes doubleheaders Dec. 28 and 30 with Michigan, Pittsburgh and Princeton.

Reagan Holds Hopes

Penn Halfback Expected To Carry Brunt of Attack Against Michigan.

By BILL BELL

PHILADELPHIA — (AP)— Who's afraid of the big, bad Wolverine? Not Francis Xavier Reagan, Penn's practical pigskinner and chief hope against mighty Michigan Saturday.

Frank already has led the rout of Maryland's Terrapin, Yale's Bulldog and Princeton's Tiger. Now he's aiming for the Wolverines of Ann Arbor and their pack leader, Tom Harmon, only footballer in the nation to outscore Reagan this season.

If Frank outshines Tom in the Penn-Michigan battle, he may begin to think of himself as All-American material, he said.

Reagan is such a normal young American of 21 that it would be difficult to spot him on the campus as the University of Pennsylvania's most prominent undergraduate

He looks like his name and lives like it, dwelling in the priest's house of St. Bede's campus chapel and taking an active part in the Catholic students' organization

Restrained and bashful, he acknowledges "extreme nervousness" before each game and is "even more nervous" in the presence of interviewers. The three victims of his 61 points this season haven't noticed it, perhaps because Frank "always calms down once the game is under way."

Frank is a Philadelphia boy, one of eight children, who got his first football bumps on the pavements of Germantown. His father, a factory foreman, watched him play college football for the first time last Saturday against Princeton.

* * *

Seeing his son get a broken leg in a high school game had kept him away for four years, but he's going to Ann Arbor with the rest of the family to see ""my boy" pitted against the great Harmon.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Chitter chatter: J. M. Saunderson has coached football at Morningside college 29 straight years, and who can beat that? . . . . San Snead's older brother, Pete, is assistant pro at a club in Hot Springs, Va.

* * *

When Floyd Giebbels, young Tiger pitcher, bumped into Pat Mullen, his old room-mate, at Buffalo the other day he pulled out his world's series roll, stripped off two fifties and said, "There's a wedding present for you, Butch." . . . (Pat gets married down in West Virginia today) . . .

WHERE IS IT NOW?

When Dick Chapman won the French amateur golf championship last year, the Frenchies wouldn't let him bring home the trophy . . . Made him take a picture of it, instead . . . Dick protested, but they told him no. 50,000,000 Frenchmen couldn't be wrong . . . The trophy probably is among Hitler's souvenirs by this time.

PERSONAL MENTION

With the departure of Pepper Martin from the Cardinals, the Detroit news summed it up thusly: "Gas house closed."

Coach of the Week

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — He is bringing back to Palo Alto some of the glory that was there in the great days of Pop Warner and Ernie Nevers.

* * *

The United Press nominates for the coach of the week—Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford.

It looked like he was jumping from the frying pan into the fire when he left Chicago university last winter and moved into Palo Alto, Calif., where a demoralized Stanford team had just finished a disastrous season. But he took what material he had, instilled morale and fight into his squad and so far this season he is unbeaten and untied.

Even when Chicago University's team was the laughing stock of the nation in 1939, football men knew that a good coach was on the job at the Midway. It would have taken a miracle to bring a winning team out of the material Shaughnessy had in Chicago and he lays no claim to being a miracle man.

But he can rig up a tricky, fast-moving offense and that is what has brought Stanford victories over San Francisco, Oregon, Santa Clara and Washington State. On Saturady the boys go against Southern California in a game that probably will determine which team carries the hopes of the west into the Rose Bowl.

Clark Shaughnessy, 47 years old, is a graduate of the University of Minnesota where they grow their football players rough and tough. From 1914 until 1926 he coached Tulane, compiling a record of 58 games won, 27 lost and six tied. Then he moved over to Loyola of the south where, in five years, he won 38, lost 16 and tied two.

His record at Chicago from 1933 through 1939 is not impressive—17 won, 34 lost and four tied—but his reputation as a sound football man was big enough to survive that. In January of this year he went to Stanford under a five-year contract.

* * *

Shaughnessy's favorite expression as he sends his players up and down the practice field is "get nifty" and that's what Stanford has done this season

BOWLING SCORES

Els Whitcomb pounded out a fine 648 total to pace the individual scoring at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Scoring 201, 234 and 213 in three games, Whitcomb set a season scoring high in the Transportation league as he led the Globe Steels to three games over the Silver King Tractors.

Skeets Wolf with a 594 led the Foremen in a win over the Mill Room team in the Mansfield Tire league.

Team Faces Test

Indiana Must Win From Northwestern To Make Season Successful.

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO — (AP)—This is the week that quite possibly will "make or break" Indiana university's football season.

A victory over Northwestern Saturday following the Hoosiers' impressive 10-6 win over Iowa would put the charges of Bo McMillin in the front rank for Big Ten honors with Michigan and Minnesota.

But a defeat would not only represent their third loss in four games, but would leave them with a tough time ahead against Ohio State, Michigan State, Purdue and Wisconsin.

McMillin's machine, however, showed real signs of snapping out of it last week, mainly because of the clutch running of little Harold (Red) Zimmer, smallest back in the conference.

Zimmer, 145-pound senior, went into the Iowa game with instructions from McMillin to call for a quick kick. But on the first play, before he could talk to his mates, Hal Hursh sent Zimmer around end and the little fellow forgot to stop. He went all the way, 50 yards, to Indiana's lone touchdown.

If Zimmer and Sophomore Dale Sihart can give the Hoosiers a running attack to go with Hursh's dangerous passes, then McMillin has a better than even chance to get his detractors off his neck.

The good word from Columbus is that backers of Ohio State are not too blue about the team's losses to Northwestern and Minnesota.

They even think that Don Scott and his mates may bounce back with a terrific surge in an effort to hand Cornell its first defeat at Ithaca Saturday.

Down at Bloomington those reports about Bill De Correvont's sprained ankle are rated strictly as the old malarkey.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(UP)—A few private opinions made public: Football is supposed to be a team game in which the players, like suspender buttons, are equally important. But you'd never guess this from reading the literature concerning the coming battle between Michigan and Pennsylvania.

* * *

The othe. 20 men on the starting elevens have been as forgotten as Charles McNary in the excitement over the duel between Tommy Harmon and Frank Reagan. A few more days of reading about this duel is all that matters, and I would not be surprised if the other players said let's forget the game and get seats on the 50-yard line where we can see it.

You don't have to be a tree lover to shudder at the thought of the thousands of stately pines which have been felled to furnish paper for the home-made statisticians who publish and circulate their ratings of the country's football teams.

None of them make any sense whatsoever. They throw a passel of decimal points at you, dress them up with a mess of meaningless words, and mail the whole darn thing out with inadequate postage. To prove I'm not biased allow me to quote you a few lines from one of the most respected of these gridiron Einsteins:

"Defeat of a team may not cause loss of points in the ranking unless it reveals basic weaknesses that will have bearing on future contests. . . . The rate numbers are not percentages but terse indices of relative strength . . ."

One bad pass from center can spoil all the statistics this side of heaven.

What about having the first man drawn in the draft lottery named as manager of the Cleveland Indians' baseball club? This would work a two-way benefit.

It would elimiate the boring discussion of whether Oscar Vitt is going to be re-hired or succeeded by Bucky Harris, Steve O'Neill, Babe Ruth, Mickey Cochrane, Rogers Hornsby, Mel Harder, Rollie Hemsley, Luke Sewell, Kiki Cuyler, Bill Terry, Colonel Rupert Julian, Noel Coward, John Barrymore or the Boswell sisters.

Such a plan would also make every other draftee so content with his lot that he would pay his own way to camp, greet his top sergeant with a red apple and volunteer for kitchen police.

MICHIGAN-PENNSYLVANIA TILT TO BE SHORT-WAVED

ANN ARBOR —(INS)— Europe—war or no war—still is interested in the great American sport of football.

BONDS, STOCKS SHOW BETTER PRICE RANGES

Motors, Rubbers, Steels Listed In Group Receiving Support; Power Output Up.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Rising tendencies appeared in the stock market today and were paralleled by advancing prices in bonds and commodities.

Included in the vanguard were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Caterpillar, Boeing, Douglas, Glenn Martin, Western Union and Standard Oil of N. J.

Rubber, hides, sugar and cotton received the majority of attention by commodities traders largely, commentators suggested, because of defense requirements.

As additions to the improved industrial rate seen in the rise in steel mill production, boardrooms noted increases in two other important industrial indices: freight carloadings and electric power output.

Experts estimated freight loadings last week to have improved contraseasonally, reaching a total of about 813,000 cars compared with 811,906 in the preceding week.

to Philadelphia for stops at the Cramp shipyards and the Frankford arsenal.

The president will speak at 9:15 p. m. (EST). Two national radio networks (NBC and CBS) will carry the speech, the time for which will be paid by the Democratic national committee. The occasion is National Youth day and the title of the address, "America looks to the future."

Willkie, en route east from a mid-west tour, is scheduled to go on the air shortly after Mr. Roosevelt concludes. The Republican nominee will address the Herald-Tribune forum in New York City.

Ickes and White House aides said the chief executive was ready for a "bang-up" campaign finish.

The president himself told reporters yesterday if he made another election forecast now it would be substantially the same as one he put down three weeks ago. This was in response to a press conference question whether he was still being "conservative" in his election predictions, an adjective he had used in describing his forecasts at a previous press interview.

Discussing his future plans, he said he would speak on the night of Nov. 1 at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Then he will travel to Cleveland for a speech on Nov. 2, the Saturday night before election, visiting defense industries at Rochester and Buffalo, N. Y., en route.

His other speeches will be at Madison Square Garden, New York, next Monday night, Oct. 28, and at his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., election eve, Nov. 4.

Wallace Loses Wisconsin Vote

MADISON, Wis.—(U.P.)—Wisconsin Democrats, chagrined by Henry A. Wallace's inferential endorsement of U. S. Sen. Robert M. La Follette, Prog., Wis., for re-election, threatened today to break with the national administration in November.

Wallace, Democratic candidate for vice president, gave La Follette the endorsement in a speech before young Democrats last night after consultation with the White House. Four Democratic candidates for state office walked out of the hall before Wallace's speech when he confirmed to them reports that he would endorse La Follette.

Francis McGovern, candidate for governor, said he would consider withdrawing from the gubernatorial race, leaving the field to Gov. Julius P. Heil who is seeking re-election, and the Progressive candidate. Heil received more votes in the September primary election than the Democratic and Progressive candidates combined.

The endorsement was regarded as an alliance between the national Democratic organization and the Progressive party, headed by former Gov. Philip F. La Follette and his brother, the senator. Sen. La Follette previously had announced that he would support President Roosevelt for re-election despite their differences on foreign policy. La Follette has been a staunch isolationist.

Wallace addressed a crowd of 4,000 farmers and young Democrats concluding a two-day automobile tour of Iowa and Wisconsin.

"I desire on this occasion particularly to express my appreciation of the untiring support we in Washington have received from Democratic and Progressive congressmen in Wisconsin and from your senior senator, Robert M. La Follette," Wallace said.

The state candidates who walked off the speakers' platform when they learned of the endorsement were McGovern; James Finnegan, La Follette's opponent for the senate seat; Francis T. Murphy, congressional candidate from the 5th Wisconsin district, and Gustave Keller, candidate for attorney general.

UNUSUAL CRASH CASE SETTLED

Agreement For Unannounced Sum Ends Suit of Rail Engine's Owners.

A suit in which the Northern Ohio Railroad company sought $588 for damages to one of its locomotives in a train-automobile collision in Plymouth had been settled out of court today for an unannounced amount.

George E. Hagenbuch and H. B. Stewart, trustees for the railroad, brought the action against John E. Haas of Willard, the motorist, contending that Haas drove his car into the side of the locomotive at a Plymouth crossing last Nov. 3.

In their petition, the plaintiffs also contended that the car damaged the electric flasher at the crossing which allegedly was operating when Haas drove onto the crossing

The petition stated that Haas "negligently drove his car into the locomotive" although the engineer was "blowing the whistle to indicate the approach of the train."

Atty. W. M. Weldon represented the railroad company and Attys. C. H. Henkel and J. H. Gongwer were counsel for Haas.

CHAPTER XIX

"I'm sorry about making any change, Miss Britton," Mrs. Fordyce said. "But you see Miss Sanderson was my daughter-in-law's governess before she went to the Griscoms and the Fosters. Mrs. Foster really bribed her to come to her, and Mrs. Griscom didn't forgive her for years, so you can see how valuable she is. And the French and German are important, don't you think so, Phil?"

"I'll act worse than I ever have," Norma promised calmly.

"No, you won't, Spotty," her father said kindly. "You're only a little girl, and you know we're all doing this just to protect you. I have to go to Washington in a few days; no help for it. It's a federal case, and it may keep me there for weeks, and I won't have a happy moment if you aren't being a good girl! Why, Spot, you have everything to make you happy! You're only sixteen—well, nearly seventeen—and that's a beautiful age. You ought to have the happiest years of your life ahead, and marry some nice man, and have some cute little kids, and buy yourself a beautiful place at—say, Tahoe, and another in France, if you liked, or along the Riviera—"

"Pebble Beach," Norma said, smiling sulkily.

"Well, exactly! But we want you to learn a lot more, first, and take things quietly. Leave something for the later years. Your mother's idea was for you to take special courses at Middlefield school, work away there with nice girls, go to simple little parties, and let Miss Britton get some sleep. How about promising that you'll toe the mark for a few months? Then it'll be summer, and we'll talk about Honolulu—"

"I want a place in Honolulu!" Norma said, petulantly, but mollified.

"Well, why not? You can have any damn thing you want in the world if you'll just steer clear of scrapes."

"But I won't do anything if Sandy's around!" stipulated Norma.

"Well, now let me see how we can work that. Miss Britton, what would you suggest?"

"Suppose we telephone the Middlefield school," Jocelyn said, feeling like Alice as they all looked at her seriously, and conscious of a deep inner impulse toward angry laughter. "It's vacation, and they'd have plenty of room. And suppose Norma and I went quietly down there and boarded for a few days. We could make arrangements for her studies with all her teachers and get her books and get started. Then you could telegraph her mother that she was at Middlefield, and that nobody could get in touch with her for several days."

"I think that's the answer," Philip said, with a quiet triumphant smile of approval.

"But that doesn't solve Sandy, Phil," Daisy Verrinder said, in her gentle regretful way. "Dear, dear!" she added with a light laugh and a glance at the other women that made the remark the merest nonsense. "If it wasn't for the dreadful eight years between us I'd marry you with or without your consent, Phil, and move right in here, and then we'd not have any trouble at all!"

"Phil's still in love with Janet," his mother said.

"Say, listen!" Philip protested. "Cut it out! I'm not asking Sandy to chaperon me, or Miss Britton, either!"

This drew all eyes to Jocelyn, who was infuriated to feel herself flushing. "What—what do you think of the Middlefield school plan?" she asked, stammering a little.

"I'll tell you what I think," said Mrs. Fordyce suddenly. "Send Sandy down there with Norma for three days. Then wire Janet that Sandy and Norma are at Middlefield. She's always thought Norma ought to go to Middlefield."

"If it's a school where every girl has her own horse and takes care of it, and the head mistress wears hunting coats and things, I won't stay," said Norma.

"You'll not have to stay," said her grandmother. "You'll be home in a few days. Meanwhile we'll tell everyone you're in a rest home, your nerves have been all upset by this terrible accident, and in a week they'll be thinking of something else, and you'll be home again."

"But why Sandy?" the girl protested.

"So we can wire your mother you're with Sandy."

"I don't know why everything's so horrible!" Norma muttered. She had left her father's arms to go curl herself uncomfortably on the foot of her grandmother's bed. Now she turned her back on the company, toppled over, pulled a fat satin puff over her, and apparently returned to sleep.

Jocelyn and Philip went into the hall together. The girl, above a sense of hurt, was trying to smile and speak understandingly. "I'm afraid I've let you down terribly," she said.

"I don't know what gets into them, or how they raise them," Philip said, shaking his head. "A child that age, causing all this fuss and uproar! And the appalling thing is," he added, as he and Jocelyn moved toward the door that opened into the wing where her rooms were, "we're probably going to have six or seven years of this. I don't know how people get them through it. I wish to God the girl was twenty-three!"

"But that seems such a tragedy," said Jocelyn. "A father ought to be getting such joy out of a daughter as pretty and smart as Norma."

"She's pretty enough," he conceded, "but I don't know why you say smart."

"She's smart enough, too, only it's been all twisted sideways, Mr. Fordyce," Jocelyn said, suddenly turning to her own problem. "I think your mother would be happier with Miss Sanderson here; to have me gone. And I do think it would be a good thing to send them down to the school tomorrow. Norma's frightened enough to go now; she doesn't want to go back to—" She hesitated, changed somewhat the phrase she had been going to us. "She doesn't like New York, and she doesn't like Count—what is it?"

"So here we have the question of one of the richest little girls in the world," he said, with a troubled smile and a shake of his head, "with a mother and father and grandmother, with five or six homes, and nowhere to go. Well, we'll pop her and Sandy into school for a week and see where that gets us."

"And I'm slipping away," Jocelyn told him. It gave her an odd little twinge to say it. She didn't want to leave this fascinating tangle. "I've not been much of a success, and it's possible that Miss Sanderson's Victorian methods will work better."

"She'll not stand Sandy long. That's really to pacify her mother. I feel very badly about the whole thing," Philip said.

"I really want to go. I feel as if the tempo had been a little swift for me," Jocelyn said. "I'm going to my aunt, I think. There's going to be a wedding there, and there are two small babies in the house, and I generally straighten out my uncle's bills for him and collect a lot of money he never would. And I feel as if that sort of thing might be good for me, for a while."

"Well, when'll you be back in the office, Miss Britton? For I'll be going away next week, and I want to report first, of course."

"I was thinking perhaps I wouldn't come back. It's been—pretty strenuous for me," Jocelyn explained. "You remember under what circumstances you gave me a lift home from Berkeley? I suppose that took it out of me a little. And then this, and the feeling that I've let Norma get herself into such trouble—I'd like to get away from it all for a while."

"You mean you're still in love with Dunham?" His voice, with its sudden ring of authority, its quality of having the right to question her, thrilled her oddly, and she felt a little shaken as she answered him.

"No, I only feel ashamed about all that. That's over. It seemed so—so easy a thing to get into. But when one sees it from a little distance—however," Jocelyn interrupted herself, smiling, "you've had enough of that affair! But I'll always be grateful to you for what you did, and glad I had this experience here. Perhaps Miss Sanderson wouldn't have lost sight of Norma, even for that minute—"

"No," he said, as she hesitated, "I don't think she would."

"Well, maybe not. Maybe she knows girls better than I do. I'm sorry, anyway. And if you'll be here until—say a week from today, I'll come into the office and tell you whether I can come back or not."

"But we can't get along without you!" he said, really troubled.

"Oh yes, you can. Only I am glad you want me. I've been four years with Fordyce and Sawyer, and of course I feel at home there. But I really would—I'd like awfully to go to my aunt's for a few days."

MONEY
To Consolidate Your Debts . . .

Many of the people who borrow from us do so to pay off long-due bills and scattered installment accounts. You can do this—and be cash ahead!

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO: Get all your bills and installment payments together. Also, figure out how much additional money you need for immediate purchases. We will advance the cash you require, promptly.

You then have only ONE place to pay, instead of many, and only ONE payment to make each month.

Moreover, you actually REDUCE your monthly expenses because your monthly payment on your loan is considerably LESS than were all your scattered payments together.

Strange Facts About Money

Fishhooks, odd as it seems, were long used for money in India and Ceylon. Gradually the fishhooks themselves gave way to bent wires resembling fishhooks but having no real utility in fishing.

FRANCE BALKS AT DEMAND OF WAR UPON ALLY

Nazis Reticent on Meeting of Hitler and Laval; Worried By Possible Rebellion.

kept up "sweeping" raids on England all night.

A heavy pall of fog over London reinforced by smoke pouring from the capital's million chimneypots gave Londoners their soundest night of sleep in many weeks and all but stymied German raiders. The beleaguered city passed its second successive morning without an air-raid, and it was not until afternoon that an alarm sounded — quickly followed by the "raiders passed" signal.

Today's "invasion weather:" Heavy rain clouds darkened the Dover Strait; dense mist covered sea; cold northeast wind; waters calm.

A heavy blow to British troops en route to the Near East was reported by Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, amplifying the Italian high command's assertion yesterday that six British ships were sunk by Italian torpedoboats in the Red sea.

Gayda declared the ships went down with the loss of all hands —between 3,000 and 4,000 lives lost out of the 36-ship convoy's total of 22,000 troops.

The British admiralty yesterday asserted that none of the convoy ships was damaged and that the only British casualties were three wounded aboard the destroyer Kimberley, which later blew up the Italian destroyer Francesco Nullo.

In London, authoritative British quarters reported 20 per cent of German's productive capacity has been "affected" by RAF bombing forays under a "master plan" of destruction of Nazi war industries. These quarters also said the Germans have been forced to consider the "rebuilding" of Hamburg, the great north German seaport, which has been relentlessly pounded by the RAF.

Franco Leaves To Meet Hitler

LONDON—(INS)—Spanish Generalissimo Francisco Franco has left Madrid for San Sebastian, apparently en route to a meeting with Chancellor Hitler, according to unconfirmed reports received in London today.

While no verification of these advices could be obtained, they were in line with the reported activities of Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Nazi Gestapo (secret police), during his recent visit to Spain.

Furthermore, London sources pointed out, a talk between Hitler and Franco would be a logical sequel to recent Berlin and Rome reports that Spain would figure in the next Italo-German move toward establishment of a "new order" in Europe.

These reports indicated the Axis powers were not anxious to bring Spanish troops into the European conflict, but that they wanted use of Spanish bases in the Mediterranean and along the Atlantic coast.

Shelby

Shelby Brownies will not meet this week at the Little House because of other activities.

A Halloween dance is being planned for members of Shelby Country club and their guests Saturday night at the clubhouse. Art Shreffler and his orchestra from Shelby will furnish the music for the dance.

Knights of Columbus members will be entertained for a dance and card party Friday night at the hall.

Members of Troop 3 of the Boy Scouts will hold their annual Halloween party tonight when they meet at First Methodist church for their regular weekly meeting in charge of Scoutleaders Jacque Kaler, Louis Wright, Jacque Armstrong, Avon Phillips and Wayne Vanasdale.

The men of First Church of Christ will have charge of the mid-week service at 7:30 p. m. tonight at the church. Rev. R. Taffle Crowe, pastor, will lead the service.

A pot-luck supper followed by a social proram was held when Mrs. Otto Shoup entertained a group of friends honoring Mrs. Harry Baird, who will leave Shelby soon to make her home in Alliance.

Shelby Garden club will sponsor a benefit bride party Oct. 29 at Shelby Country club. Mrs. L. M. Dunathan is in charge of the ticket sale. Table reservations are being supervised by Mrs. L. N. Hoffman and Mrs. John Fish.

Miss Oleda Schrottky of New York City, dramatic advisor of national headquarters of the Girl Scouts of America, was the guest of honor at a tea held Wednesday afternoon at the Little House here. The affair was sponsored by Shelby Girl Scout council. Miss Schrottky will speak at Park Avenue Baptist church in Mansfield at 7:45 p. m. tonight.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE

Gore Says Roosevelt, Hull Only Ones Knowing Dangers Which U. S. Faces.

pointed out that the present war was not merely one of aggression or European hatreds but that the right to live christianity upon which men's lives and civilization must be based was at stake.

"Our interests are so closely tied up with Great Britain's that day by day it becomes more difficult to tell where British interests leave off and America's begins," he declared.

Gore then stated flatly that all aid short of war should be given by the United States to "The gallant people of Great Britain" and criticized Republicans who tried to stop that aid.

In reply to foes of the New Deal who have blamed Roosevelt for lack of proper preparedness, Gore pointed out that under Roosevelt leadership "the United States has built the greatest navy in the world."

The young representative declared: "And we will keep this great navy in the Pacific where, if these squint-eyed Japs ever dare attack us, we will blow them out of the water."

Dealing chiefly with foreign affairs, the congressman dismissed the candidacy of Wendell L. Willkie with a few biting remarks on the "inconsistencies found in the candidate's speeches."

"In one statement he endorsed the Roosevelt foreign policies, and in another he accuses the president of leading the United States into war," he remarked. "What does the man mean, anyway?"

Describing the Repubican presidential candidate as a "political vane responding to the merest suspicion of a political breeze," Gore said:

"The only real break the Republican party has had so far in the campaign has been when Willkie got laryngitis."

Louis Bromfield introduced Gore with the remark that "Wendell Willkie, not war, was our great national danger."

Also speaking on the program was William Kennedy of Cleveland; Robert S. Cox, candidate for lieutenant governor; and William F. Hurley, candidate for state senator. All county candidates were also introduced at the gathering.

Two events for women and a ward rally tonight are on the Democratic calendar today with two meetings scheduled for Thursday night and two for Friday night.

This afternoon, two teas were to be given for women of the second ward. Attorney Charles Spreng is the speaker for a tea at the home of Mrs. Glenn Marriott, 611 Edgewood road. Another group was to meet at the home of Mrs. George Hughes, 42 Sherman avenue, at which Attorney Marshall Moore was to speak.

A rally of Fourth ward Democratic voters will be held at Johns park pavilion tonight, with a program at 7:30, followed by cards and dancing.

Thursday night Young Democrats of Richland county will give a dinner at the Eagles hall for party candidates, their wives and members of the county executive committee. There will also be a ward meeting at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at the common pleas court room for voters of the third ward and from the south half of the sixth ward.

Friday night, which will wind up the campaign work for this week, will be given over to two ward meetings. At Newman street school building, voters of the fifth ward will congregate to meet local candidates and hear issues discussed and at Hedges school there will be a meeting for the voters in the north half of the sixth ward.

DISPUTES FDR'S PEACE PROMISE

station, Willkie was hit by a missle believed to have been a frozen egg. His wife was splattered with an egg. Police arrested a man who was later booked as Charles Mulrain, 53, an unemployed stationary engineer.

Willkie's address was delivered before a noisy, cheering crowd which overflowed the 25,000 seats of the hall where President Roosevelt was renominated last summer. He called on the president to say whether he (Willkie) had "falsified the record" when he charged that the New Deal had broken several 1932 Democratic platform pledges.

"If his (the president's) promise to keep our boys out of foreign wars is not better than his promise to balance the budget, they are already practically on the transports," the candidate said.

The statement was added extemporaneously to his prepared text, which said:

"The New Deal promises to keep us out of war. The third term candidate says he hates war. He said on September 11: 'I have one supreme determination—to do all I can to keep war away from these shores for all time.'

"That is the promise.

"My fellow citizens: In the light of the record I challenge it. The third term candidate has not kept faith with the American people. How are we to know that he will begin to keep it now."

White Pays for Big Willkie Ad

COLUMBUS —(INS)— "Whenever this nation can find but one man qualified for the presidency, it will have reached a condition when its preservation will be a matter of little concern," George White, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, declared today in a full page advertisement in a Columbus newspaper, urging the election of Wendell Willkie.

White, also a former two-term governor of Ohio, asserted that "dangers which arise from the possibility of a third term are greater than the risk involved in electing a liberal leader for president, even though he has been nominated by the Republican party."

"On the issue of a third term," said White, "I agree with Mr. Willkie's statement that he did not leave the Democratic party, but that the party left him."

White's advertisement was captioned, "An appeal to Jeffersonian Democrats for their support of Wendell L. Willkie against the third term." He was a delegate-at-large to the Democratic national convention in Chicago which nominated Mr. Roosevelt for a third term.

Denies Tossing Egg at Willkie

CHICAGO —(INS)— Charles Mulrain, 53-year-old unemployed stationary engineer, was charged today with breach of the peace and assault as the alleged egg-thrower who struck Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Willkie last night as they were about to board their special train at LaSalle street depot.

Mulrain denied throwing the eggs, one of which struck the Republican presidential candidate on the left cheek under his eye, raising a slight welt. The second egg hit Mrs. Willkie in the back, splattering over her clothes.

The eggs, which were frozen, were thrown from a distance of about 20 feet. Willkie, angered by the attack upon his wife, seemed intent upon going after the egg-thrower personally, but was held back by friends.

Mulrain was seized immediately by Police Capt. Thomas Duffy and other officers and, despite his protests, was hustled off to jail.

A free-for-all fight apparently was narrowly avoided during the excitement. One onlooker, reported to have remarked "sorry I didn't have some eggs to throw at Willkie, too," was knocked down by a blow from Edgar G. Ball, Chicago business man who said he was a high school mate of Willkie's in Elwood, Ind. As the crowd surged around Ball and the other man, policemen moved in quickly and restored order.

degree of independence, and function as a satellite state in Berlin's political and economic orbit.

Washington, acting under the administration's policy of aiding Britain by measures "short of war," has some practical reasons for wanting to know whether the government of unoccupied France should be regarded as a conquered state, neutral in the Anglo-German war, or as a potential ally of Berlin.

Although the state department has never asked the British to raise their blockade for the wholesale shipment of food to France, the question of limited aid, in case of famine, is still being considered by the American Red Cross and the special division of the state department.

Any indication that the Petain government planned to enter an alliance with Berlin would certainly block any prospect of feeding France.

Moreover, the treasury department has shown a tendency to relax restrictions on French "frozen funds" in America. Permission was granted Monday for the Vichy government to withdraw limited amounts each month for the maintenance of its consulates and legations in Latin-America. That was done in the belief that easing France's financial position in the western world would help it maintain whatever degree of independence the Nazi conquerors have left to it.

Several recent actions of the Vichy government have caused profound, if publicly unexpressed, resentment in the state department. Officials were particularly annoyed over the concessions made by France to Japan in Indo-China and the bombing of Gibraltar by the French air corps.

Treaty On Seals Abrocated

TOKYO —(AP)— Japan notified the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia today that she was abrogating—effective a year hence—an agreement for protection of fur bearing seals the foreign office anounced.

During the year, Japan will submit proposals for a new agreement, it was announced.

A foreign office statement said the seals had multiplied to such an extent in the North Pacific that fishing industries had been damaged.

Japs Threaten Force in Indies

TOKYO —(AP)— The influential newspaper Asahi declared today Japan must bring the Netherlands East Indies "over to our side"—by "armed force," if necessary — to provide oil for the Japanese war machine.

It indicated negotiations to obtain the Indies' oil so far had failed and said:

Either we must show them it is clearly against their interests to rely on Britain and the United States, or we must resort to armed force and make them comply.

"No matter how we might try to reason with the Dutch, it would be a sheer waste of time and energy unless the Anglo-American policy changes."

The Japanese have said an oil agreement was concluded with the Indies last Saturday.

(Dutch officials at Batavia have denied an agreement was reached.)

LONGER SERVICE FOR GUARD SEEN

Officers Fear Organization To Be Taken Over By Army Entirely.

guardsmen's year of service is completed?

2. Is the regular army seeking to gain control of the guard by requiring middle-aged guard officers to pass physical examinations comparable to those required by second lieutenants? Guardsmen said off the record that they believed this regulation was just a means of eliminating many of the high ranking guard officers.

3. Why are guard cavalry units being transformed into other branches of the service, while the regular army is concentrating on training many of its men to fit into the new cavalry-mechanized brigades?

To all of these questions, it was learned, the army officials have replied with a big "tush-tush," adding an admonishment to the guardsmen to consider their patriotic duty and forget everything else.

"We are willing to remember our patriotic duty and to give up our businesses to help train the new conscript army," one guardsman commented. 'But we still feel we have a right to an answer to these questions."

NATIONAL NO THIRD TERM DAY

TODAY
WED., OCT. 23RD
Is Dedicated
To the Principle That
All Men Are Created Equal . . . and That

The American Voter Is Our Country's Only Indispensable Man

Under normal conditions the American voter does just about the right thing—when he knows the facts and does a little thinking.

But these are not normal times. They require deeper thinking, more careful thinking. This year the voter has the opportunity to perpetuate free government in the United States—an opportunity to elect a President big enough and broad enough to understand that no man is indispensable—unless it is the American Voter.

The American Voter is bigger than the Washingtons, the Jeffersons, the Lincolns and the Willkies—even bigger than the Roosevelts. You — the American Voter—will decide the basic issue of 1940! Will we retain the freedom intended by the founders of our country or will we surrender our rights as individuals to dictatorial executive powers.

Seven years ago we started to remove the careful checks and balances provided by the nation's founders—as "emergency" measures. For seven long years one man has usurped powers not his under the constitution, on the plea of what he calls "Emergencies."

Well, this is an "emergency!" You the American Voter - have a task to do! On November 5th, issue a new declaration of independence! Return to government of the people, by the people, for the people. Perpetuate freedom in the land! Restore equal justice and opportunity! Put an end to the never-ending "Emergencies" and to the threat of dictatorial government. You—the American Voter - the one indispensable man—can do it. You can elect Wendell Willkie.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1940.

It may be assumed that all political speeches "on order" will be rushed to completion before November 5.

The Burma road has been re-opened to traffic—but tourists are probably warned that they travel at their own risk.

That Detroit heckler of Mayor LaGuardia is said to have lost two buttons during the scuffle—to say nothing of those previously missing.

More Making Ready To Vote

PEOPLE of the United States are showing more interest in their voting privilege than formerly, if rising registration figures are reliable evidence. In 1928 only 36,879,414 eligible voters voted. In 1932 the number rose to 39.816,522. In 1936 the total popular vote was 45,646,817. Yet even then 27,000,000 citizens who might have voted did not do so.

Registration in some areas where it is required yearly has been running far ahead of 1936 figures. It looks now as if the total popular vote in 1940 will be the biggest so far, with a lot of people voting who have neglected that job in the past.

This is a good sign. It indicates interest in public affairs, growing appreciation of the citizens' responsibility in a self-governing nation, and growing eagerness to take advantage of the opportunity—denied to the people of many lands today—to express approval or disapproval of policies and officeholders.

Fun Without Rowdyism

THE SPIRIT of fun which prompts Halloween observance is so well worth retaining that a larger percentage of adults might properly share in plans and preparations for community celebration of this October 31 event.

Under sponsorship of the American Legion, Mansfield is to again have a down-town Halloween party this year, with a big parade of floats, masked merrymakers and music.

If, in addition to this centralized entertainment program, there can be a number of private parties in the homes of young people, and arrangements for attendance at movies, as is done in a number of cities, Mansfield should have a pleasant Halloween evening and night, free from property destruction or excessive rowdyism.

The Birmingham, Mich., plan is to have a community affair featuring a free barbecue, community singing, free movies for younger children and a supervised dance for older boys and girls.

Minneapolis has a rather elaborate plan of Halloween observance, managed through the public schools with co-operation of parents.

One serious problem in connection with Halloween is how to discourage youngsters who have an idea that Halloween pranks, even to the extent of destroying or damaging property, are permissible for a week or two before October 31 and may be carried on for several days afterward.

In such instances police intervention is quite proper—if parental discipline fails.

South Boulevards' Five Questions

MADISON township's newly incorporated village of South Boulevards, which adjoins Mansfield to the south, on Lexington avenue, is to decide at the approaching election whether or not to permit the sale of intoxicants in the village.

This local option election will be in accordance with a state law which allows the majority of voters in a village, township or city to determine whether intoxicants shall be sold therein.

Under the present law, however, such a proposal is much more complicated than the old-time "wet or dry" vote of yes or no, as five separate questions are submitted on the South Boulevards ballot, each requiring an "x" mark to indicate the voter's "yes" or "no."

As the questions appear on the ballot, the first is "Shall the sale of any intoxicating liquor be permitted . . . ": the second, "Shall the sale of wine by the package for consumption off the premises where sold, be permitted . . . ": the third, "Shall the sale of wine for consumption on or off the premises where sold, be permitted . . . ": the fourth, "Shall the sale of spirituous liquors by the glass be permitted . . . ": and the fifth, "Shall state liquor stores . . . be permitted."

With the questions put in this form a "yes" vote favors and a "no" vote opposes sale of intoxicants in South Boulevards—leaving decision up to voters living in the village.

Chance for South America

SOME TRAVELERS from the United States returned after a summer in South America to say that there was no real democracy there, that dictatorship was the rule, and even the choice of the people, and that our "good neighbor" policy could easily be wiped out by a Nazi or Fascist action when those groups were ready to take over.

It is folly, of course, to ignore facts and to delude ourselves with hopes if they are not based on actual conditions. But is it not also folly to be sweepingly critical of neighbors about whom we know shockingly little? We have only begun to take an interest in them and have much to learn.

Deeper exploration of their civil life than the casual tourist makes discloses many freedom-loving citizens in all those lands. If there are even a few men and women of vision who believe in the future of democracy in the New World, if there are those who distrust the Old World dictators and long to shake off their influence, their hands and hearts should be strengthened by patient, intelligent co-operation.

Estimating Hitler's 'Genius'

FROM "The Voice of Destruction," written by Herman Rauschning, Hitler's former associate who turned from him in horror, a reader gets the impression that the fuehrer is an insane genius with overwhelming delusions of grandeur and a mania for destruction.

The characterization would be incredible if it were not supported by so many monstrous deeds already committed within Germany and against Germany's neighbors, and present threats against all the rest of the world that will not bow to his murderous will. Even the complete surrender of France, as is now clear, will not save that proud country from destruction.

It is hard to realize that the queer little man with the Charlie Chaplin mustache and the weak chin and the hypnotic eyes is an Alexander, an Attila, a Mohammed and a Napoleon rolled into one. And it is not yet evident how, when or by whom his murderous and revolutionary career will finally be stopped.

INSPECTING THE PARTY DEFENSES

Listen World!

We're Asking For It!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A MILLION Fifth Columnists—foreign shadow soldiers—are actually at war with the United States now, on our own soil! They are here inciting treason against the government for the benefit of their European masters. Our industries, our defenses, our homes, are being spied on daily.

"These traitors claim allegiance to our form of government only to engage furtively in destroying it. They are more vicious than parachute troops because they cannot be identified quickly and destroyed. They are boring — steadily and surely — within the life of our country."

These statements are in that amazing and most desperately needed expose, "THE FIFTH COLUMN IS HERE," by George Britt. (Wilfred Funk, Pub., $1).

A secret invading army, it is cited, four times as large as the regular U. S. army, is firmly established in our midst . . . worming its way into our most confidential secrets . . . handling our most cherished defense patents and tools . . . planting their propaganda in the minds of restless youngsters and trusting simpletons. Don't try to laugh that off!

Don't say, "It's just one of those faked-up war scares." Poland said that . . . Czechoslovakia, Holland, Norway, Austria, Belgium and France said that. And England, for the greater part, believed it. Look at them now!

But whatever their stupidity, these tragic nations never made the mistake which America is making today. They never allowed hostile elements to set up patriotic associations and camps within their actual territory . . . to teach their principles to their own children in "vacation camps" . . . to publicly drill and to work in factories, shipyards and airports.

Such practices seem utterly insane when exposed on paper . . . so fantastic that sensible citizens refuse to believe them. Yet they are happening in America at this very hour with our state and federal governments' full knowledge and consent. Listen to what Mr. Britt says:

"Two days after Hitler's parachutists, tanks, dive bombers and advance traitors without warning had smashed into Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, 12,000 persons stood reverently in a municipal sports stadium and gave the stiff-arm salute of Naziism as the swastika flag was carried past. The American flag was carried too, side by side with the swastika, folds intertwining in the breeze. But it was the swastika that was heiled and stiff-armed."

THIS DEMONSTRATION HAPPENED NEAR NEW YORK CITY IN THIS YEAR, 1940. IT HAPPENED AT A TIME WHEN EVERY DECENT PERSON, REGARDLESS OF RACE, SHOULD HAVE FELT OUTRAGED AT SUCH VIOLATION OF ALL CIVILIZED CODES. AND IT WAS PRECEDED AND FOLLOWED BY OTHER DEMONSTRATIONS.

These are only two instances from a book which should shake every home in America. And what are we doing about it? We are talking. We are saying, "Ain't it awful!" Presently, unless all signs fail, we won't dare say even that. For we'll be behind the barbed wire of concentration camps—and why not?

WE'RE ASKING FOR IT!

(Copyright, 1940)

Timely Editorial

Family Income.

The world moves so rapidly that an author often finds it necessary to correct his statements before his book is long off the press. So with John T. Flynn, who wrote "Country Squire in the White House" and devoted a chapter to the earnings of President Roosevelt and his family.

What with her newspaper column and her books, lectures and broadcasts, he estimated Mrs. Roosevelt's earnings at $1,200,000. The estimate of James Roosevelt's income from the insurance business ranged from $21,000 in 1933 to $100,000 in 1939. Mr. Flynn put down Elliott Roosevelt's salary as general manager of a radio chain at $25,000. The Texas state network now announces that Elliott Roosevelt, who has resigned to take a non-combatant captaincy in the air corps of the army, drew $24,000 a year in salary, not $25,000—and that he received "slightly more than $1,000 a week" from a tooth powder company for weekly commercial broadcasts. This brought Elliott Roosevelt's annual income at about $76,000.

Mr. Flynn should make a note of this important deviation from his figures. It affects his estimate that the total earnings of the Roosevelts would amount in eight years to something over 2½ million dollars. —New York Sun.

Health And Diet

Milk Diet Adds Weight and Stature.

—By DR. CLENDENING

IN THESE DAYS when the physical stamina of our people must be brought to the highest pitch of efficiency, the science of dietetics is being called upon to guide us. Fortunately within the past two decades the science has made greater strides than in all the previous period of its history.

We consider a sturdy, strong tree and feel that it must have attained its growth and strength from the soil in which it grew, and from the regularity of rain, and sunshine. So with human beings. Nothing can take the place of good heredity — and growth is to the greatest degree dependent on that. But given a good ancestry, a favorable environment, the determining factor in growth seems to be the food elements taken in during the early years of life.

Inadequate Diet.

We list an inadequate diet as consisting of: cornmeal, milled wheat flour, sweet potatoes, cabbage, collards, fat pork, lard, cane sugar, molasses and vitamin-free casein.

This is, in fact, a standard diet—the Goldberger diet—used in nutritional laboratories to produce food deficiency conditions. It furnishes adequate fuel, energy and building material for the body, but the body will not thrive on it.

The opposite — the adequate diet—consists of milk, eggs, meat, potatoes, whole wheat bread, cereals, green vegetables and fruits.

If certain elements of this sort of diet are pushed striking periods of growth result. In London Dr. Carry Mann made the experiment of observing separate groups of children.

Careful records of height, weight and physical fitness were kept of each member of both groups. One group on an adequate basic diet gained 3 8/10 pounds and grew 1 8 10 inches. In the other group on the same basic diet but with the addition of one pint of milk a day, they gained in the same period of time 6 9 10 pound and grew 2 6/10 inches.

Milk Made the Difference.

If observed for a long time the two groups were seen to carry out this tendency regularly and continuously. Dr. Mann wrote, "The casual visitor would never fail to recognize the boys receiving the extra ration of milk. They were obviously more fit."

The menace to the population of Europe in the present crisis consists in the fact that their supplies are deficient in the very foods that increase growth and body strength.

In our own country experts say that if an adequate diet is maintained for the entire population our consumption of vegetables and citrus fruits should be increased 50 to 75 per cent; butter, milk and eggs 50 to 94 per cent and meat 10 to 30 per cent.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Nazis Change Tactics, Cut Losses; Hull Halts Talk of Quitting Post

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There is one extremely significant development in aerial warfare over London—the Nazis are not losing as many planes as they once did. These are the reports cabled to American newspapers, also the reports cabled by official U. S. observers, from London.

Behind this is a change in German tactics, motivated by the fact that Hitler's air losses during the first month of aerial bombardment were much heavier than he could afford.

Very briefly, here is the chapter by chapter history of German air experimentation over London:

1. First attacks were in large formations; wave after wave of planes came over, but were easy targets and were shot down in disastrously large numbers.

2. Second came droves of single planes, flying at different altitudes and thus harder to hit. But casualties continued high.

3. Next came small squads of about three planes at a time, flying from all directions. With this technique German casualties dropped considerably.

4. Today, the Nazis have gone back to dive-bombing, plus a combination of other types of attack.

During all this experimentation, the Nazis also had been busy revising armament on the outside of their planes, and their guns. Undoubtedly this also helped cut down casualties.

At present both sides are shooting down about the same number of planes. Meanwhile Nazi superiority in air strength continues at about 3 to 1. Chief improvement of the British position comes as a result of the big bombers they have purchased from the U. S. and also manufactured themselves. These have made possible the consistent and disastrous bombing of munitions factories in Germany.

Chief asset of the British is superior quality of individual equipment and a will to win. Without the latter, the British probably would have been defeated before this. As it is they are still fighting against vastly superior odds, but sometimes the will to win can be more important than manufactured force.

Will FDR Be Dictator?

DESPITE Roosevelt's peeve at the press, and the charge by some publishers that the president is cracking down on the newspapers, there is still no bar to the type of questions that may be asked at White House press conferences. The other day a newsman even asked Roosevelt if he intended to become a dictator.

Here is the actual colloquy, though without quotes on the president's words.

Question: "Mr. President, in coming political speeches, do you intend to answer charges made by your political opposition that you are seeking to become a dictator, and that if you are elected, there will be nothing to prevent you from doing so?" (Most questions are shorter and simpler than this one, which had been written out in advance.)

The president replied. That is interesting. It has everything except the kitchen stove in it. Who wrote it?

Questioner: I did.

The President: Good boy. My congratulations to you.

Questioner: Is there an answer?

The President: My congratulations to you. It is beautifully worded.

And that, except for the laughter, ended the cross-examination.

Hull Continues.

UP UNTIL three weeks ago, there was much speculation inside the state department that Cordell Hull soon would resign. Close friends said he had made up his mind to get out at the end of the term; that he was displeased with the idea of the third term, and disposed to yield to his wife's importuning to quit public life and enjoy himself in his declining years. (Mr. Hull is now 69.)

Members of his own office staff were saying, around the state department, that they would soon be shifted to other posts, since the secretary was going to quit.

Also, the ambition of Assistant Secretary Adolf Berle appeared to be on the upgrade again. When Berle came back with the secretary from Havana, he learned that Under Secretary Sumner Welles had been having talks with the Russian ambassador, and is reported to have said, "What the hell does Welles think he is doing? Does he think he can get anywhere with those —— Russians?"

Berle not only had his eye on the post of under secretary in case Welles went up a step, but did not consider the job of secretary beyond his reach.

There is no chance, however, that he will get it. In the first place, if Hull goes out, Welles is the most likely successor. In the second place, it is now doubtful that Hull will go out.

When the rumors of Hull's intention to quit became general, he was prevailed upon to do something to spike them. It was pointed out to him that this was no time for a change in the primary post of the president's cabinet, for domestic political as well as international consideration.

About this time, Hull was asked a question (probably planted) in press conference, and he replied that he would be willing to serve in any position from secretary of state down to doorkeeper, in the national emergency. Since then he has become increasingly irritated at Wendell Willkie's harpooning of his foreign policy, so that Mr. Hull is now bristling with indignation and burning the midnight oil in preparation of a reply to Willkie—even though the latter has said he would like to continue Mr. Hull as secretary of state.

Diplomatic Capital.

IT LOOKS as if San Francisco is slated to become the capital for Axis diplomacy in the United States.

For several years, the city has been the headquarters of Captain Fritz Wiedemann, Hitler's World war commander and personal representative in this country. And now he has been joined by a new Italian consul general of equal behind-the-scenes eminence. He is Carlo Bossi, who ranks as high in inner Mussolini councils as Wiedemann does in Hitler.

Bossi, who is carefully avoiding the limelight, played a leading role in Italy's support of General Franco against the Spanish Loyalists, and is credited with directing the capture of Barcelona, the blow that crushed the Republic. He is strongly anti-British and has close ties with both Nazi and Japanese bigwigs.

It was no accident that Bossi assumed his San Francisco post shortly before the announcement of the Axis-Japanese alliance. From the Pacific coast city, and working closely with Wiedemann, he will be in a strategic position to represent Il Duce in the Far East.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — The city lights, neon and otherwise, bleared and shimmered in the midtown rain. . . . Cabs skidded across the wet pavements, crowds jostled as unconcernedly as if there were no rain at all. . . . A delivery truck drawn by a big percheron horse got caught in the traffic, and cops, their whistles blaring, moved out to untangle him.

It seemed as good a night as any for a round of the town. Rainy night can be a downright comfort at times. . . . They fan away the dry, cracking heat of political arguments. . . . Wither away? . . . Why, to Glenn Miller's opening at the Pennsylvania, of course. . . . Orchestra leaders take busmen's holidays when another band leader has a big opening. . . . Scattered about the room you see Gray Gordon and Harry Link, the song publisher. . . . You see Bobby Byrne and Al Kavelin, Eddie DeLange, Benny Goodman, and Abe Lyman—band leaders all. . . . You see Yvette, the little southern singer with the apple blossoms of Normandie voice. . . . You see Diana Shore and Judy Starr. . . . Nineteen-year-old Peggy Dunnaway of Charlotte, N. C., is here, too. . . . She is a model now, and she is also Hal Kemp's niece. . . . That pretty girl over to the left is Dorothy Snyder of San Antonio, Tex. . . . Her dad is Frank Snyder, coach of the N. Y. Giants.

ONE of the silent backers of the new Hawaiian night spot, the Club Waikiki, is Ray Kinney. . . . This club will have Andy Iona when it opens. . . . It was Iona, composer and arranger, who played the Lexington's Hawaiian room when it first opened. . . . As the trend seems to be toward dynamite refreshments that will jar the daylights out of you—the Zombie, for instance—the Waikiki has come up with its own sweet sleep-producer. . . . Its name: the Micky-Hula.

Monty Prosser, who seems bent on acquiring one night club after another, now has taken over the Cotton club. . . . His partner in this venture is George White, the producer. . . . Lanny Ross recently took part in one of those one-shot antelope hunts that they have in Wyoming. . . . You are allowed only one shot. . . . If you miss, that's just too bad. . . . Lanny "Klondike Harry" Ross' bag for the day was one 94-pound buck. . . . He'll use the hide as a rug on his 450 acre farm near Millbrook, N. Y. . . . Farmer Ross wants you to know he has 30 cows, two sows, a flock of chickens and ducks on his place.

FRIENDS in Puerto Rico, where an important opera festival has just been held, forward this note: "I believe the most unpopular tenor in Puerto Rico is Nino Martini, who insisted that the air conditioning system at the University of Puerto Rico be turned off Monday night, when he was singing the leading role in La Boheme. Two thousand people, most of them in evening clothes, sweltered throughout the performance."

WE THINK John Buckmaster, British mimic, is about the best in town—the best, at least, that we have seen. . . . This young fellow who is the star of the Persian Room's new revue gets his laughs by reading a simple dinner menu in the manner that such personalities as H. V. Kaltenborn, the news analyst, Fitzpatrick, the travelog narrator, and a tobacco auctioneer would read it.

A Farmer's Diary

Lonely Robin

—By CALVIN A. AYERS

IN THE woods, this morning, I watched a bird dart through the meshes of a greenbrier thicket silently as a shadow. I knew it was aware of my presence, for it always placed an object—a sapling trunk, or a maze of green leaves, close to the ground—between us.

When I remained quiet where I stood for some time, he came out among the purple leaves of a dogwood, and observed intently the large red berrier, but did not attempt to eat them. I was surprised to find a robin flitting about like that, without even a chirp. Perhaps he was lonely for those that had gone farther south.

A grasshopper winged an uneven course through the air. I saw the bird cock his head for a fraction of a second, then fly down and grab the insect on the wing, before it reached a haven within the grassy tangle. A gulp and a forward movement of the head, and the luscious morsel had disappeared. I thought I detected a look of satisfaction upon his feathered face—both of accomplishment and of appeasement of appetite. He perched on a low trailing scrub oak and looked for more.

A small cloud of intermoving gnats, like a gray puff of fog sailed within a foot of where he stood, but these were too small fry and he gave them merely a passing glance. A honey bee lit on a calico aster bloom not three inches from his head, but this was not his type of food. He paid no attention. A hard, dark-shelled bug droned through the air and lit just above the branch where the robin perched. He looked, but was not interested. Not until he heard the fluttering wings of another hopper did he show the same alertness as before.

A gray squirrel came running through the leaves, and halted his rapid pace near the sub oak where the robin sat. He half rose on his haunches, barked several times, dropped on all fours again and sniffed. Then he scurried up the farther side of a pine tree and peeped through a crack. The robin was in no way alarmed at the squirrel's speech—but the squirrel was far too shy for a long conversation. He knew, perhaps, it was wiser not to tarry any place too long.

A buzzard flew high above the treetops. This disturbed the robin long before I saw it. I cowered down below the branch and concealed himself among the dark withered grass and leaves so completely that from where I stood I could not distinguish the drab feathers of his back and wings from the protective coloring of his environment.

Flying Fortresses Ordered In April Just Delivered

BOMBER PLANE NOW REPLACED BY LATER TYPE

Earlier Version of 4-Motor Ships Seen Available For Britain.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The Army Air corps has just received the first of the B-17 C type flying fortress bombers which were ordered last April and which already have been superseded by a later model, the war department announced today.

The announcement was considered significant in view of persistent reports that many of the army's B-17 B's, an earlier version of the giant four-engined bombers, would be made available to the British when the air corps begins getting deliveries on subsequent types.

Mr. Roosevelt said at a press conference yesterday that he had heard nothing about the sale of such bombers for several weeks.

The war department has also revealed that the first of the Stinson P-49 observation planes ordered from Stinson aircraft division of the Aviation Manufacturing company, Nashville, Tenn., has been delivered. That type of ship will be used to replace the highly vulnerable observation balloons for aerial "spotting" for artillery.

Both the flying fortress, manufactured by Boeing Aircraft corporation, Seattle, Wash., and the Stinson P-49 were delivered at Wright field, Dayton, O.

The war department ordered $8,000,000 worth of B-17 C type flying fortresses last April 8. The number was not revealed. Since then changes have been made in design and efforts are being made now to speed production of the new ones. It may be months before the first is ready for delivery.

AWAITS TRIAL

Yellow Springs Woman Cited For False Petitions.

XENIA — (UP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan, Yellow Springs, O., daughter-in-law of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, former TVA chairman, awaited trial today on an indictment charging her with falsification of an affidavit on a Socialist party nominating petition.

She pleaded innocent to the accusation and Common Pleas Judge F. L. Johnson assigned the case for trial on Nov. 12.

Prosecutor Marcus Shoup said Mrs. Morgan was alleged to have sworn to an affidavit given Aug. 9 that she circulated a petition which got 76 signatures for Socialist candidates. The signatures all were purportedly obtained in Butler county.

Prosecution was made in Greene county here because the petition was attested by Mrs. Morgan before a Xenia notary.

FOURTH PAVING END IN SIGHT

Contractor Says Seven Work Days Will Complete Concrete Pouring.

Seven days of concrete work and seven more of brick laying will be required to finish the West Fourth street paving—but this doesn't mean that the job will be completed within the next two weeks, according to Carl H. Stander, president of the Mansfield Asphalt and Paving company which is doing the actual paving work.

Stander said today that seven days would finish the concrete work, but it was a question as to when those days could be worked. The grading, which is being done by WPA labor, must be completed before the concrete can be laid, and there still is considerable work to be done in grading the road bed.

As soon as the concrete hardens, the brick can be finished within seven work days, he said. This week men were taken off brick work to aid in the grading.

Concrete has been poured for the side strips to Parkway drive and the center base has been completed out to Helen avenue. Concrete forms have been set as far as Western avenue.

Run-Away Youth Visited City In Pleasure Jaunt

The state-wide search for the 14-year-old son of a millionaire department store president of Cincinnati ended today when the boy returned to his home from a 1,000-mile pleasure jaunt, which included a trip through Mansfield.

Officers throughout the state had been searching for Robert Pogue, runaway son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Pogue, who disappeared from his home Sunday, driving a car and with only $5 in his pockets.

Young Pogue said today he was "just riding around" and had headed for New York City, after having driven around Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. He was "found" late yesterday at Washington C. H., 60 miles from Cincinnati, after his car had been involved in a minor accident.

The missing boy was reported seen driving in the vicinity of Mansfield by a motorist who had heard radio broadcasts about his disappearance. Pogue told police he had been in Mansfield because he remembered seeing the Ohio state reformatory.

RICHLAND FARMERS ON HAND AS CORN HUSKING CONTEST OPENS

County Agent George B. Ganyard, Marshall Whisler, his assistant, and a number of Richland county farmers went to Marion county today to attend the state corn husking contest on the Alexander farm northwest of Marion.

The shock corn contest was scheduled to get under way at noon with 19 contestants in the race. Wallace Passett, Wyandot county, is defending champion.

The standing corn contest will be held tomorrow. John Feehan, Henry county, last year's champion, will defend his crown in a field of 19 contestants. Nearly 25,000 were expected to attend the annual rural carnival.

The contestants will work feverishly for 80 minutes and then wait for the gleaners and judges to decide the winner. There will be the usual penalties for corn left on stalks and silk left on the corn.

Passett of Wyandot county, who husked 1,072.25 pounds of corn in 80 minutes to win the 1939 shock title, will defend his crown against other county contest winners.

The state winners will compete in a national contest Oct. 30 near Davenport, Ia.

WORK RELIEF PROGRAM COST

Federal Government Spends $814,175,692 in Ohio In Five Years.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The federal government since 1935 has spent $814,175,692 to maintain a work relief program in Ohio, a treasury department report disclosed today.

Ohio ranked third in federal relief expenditures, topped only by New York and Illinois, where the programs have cost $1,543,041,515 and $831,648,566 respectively.

Despite an upswing in private employment, government work relief in Ohio still is costing in excess of $10,000,000 a month. Expenditures for the first three months of the fiscal year beginning July 1 amounted to $23,106,571.

SAYS ALL MUST JOIN HANDS TO AID COMMUNITY

Speaker at Merchants' Dinner Declares Civic Advancement 'Everybody's Job.'

Declaring "it is the job of everybody in a community to make it a better community," James E. Gheen, humorist and philosopher, told 150 Mansfield business men last night that to keep pace with progress a community must be free of a complacent attitude."

He spoke at the annual dinner of the Retail Merchants' association at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. "Laughing at Yourself" was the topic.

Gheen outlined five requisites for a successful organization. As the first he listed an active working membership, second, financial income, third, a definite program; fourth, a good committee set-up, and fifth, a responsible executive.

"A successful organization is one that does those things that members want done," he said.

Gheen who is a public relations counsellor with headquarters in New York city, drove his points home by relating humorous incidents experienced by himself and others.

It was the second time that he appeared before a Mansfield audience. He spoke at the Retail Merchants' dinner a year ago.

During a brief business meeting conducted last night, Carl O. Russell, John W. Graham and C. H. Saylor were elected to membership on the board of directors. They will serve with R. M. Calene, L. A. Ott, Joy Herbert, Merle Pecht, Joe Blahnik and William Ross, hold-over members of the board. The directors will meet next week to elect officers, V. H. Lodde, secretary of the association said.

Calene, president of the association, introduced several guests. They included C. L. Van Derau president of the Chamber of Commerce; W. L. Miller, superintendent of Mansfield schools and R. B. Gardner, former state Legion commander.

William Ross was chairman of the committee which arranged the program. Musical entertainment was provided by a quartet from the Eugene Smart music studio.

SOUTH AMERICAN HAS LECTURE BEFORE CLUB

Rene Dussaq Presents Political Discussion Before Mansfield Federation at Ohio Theater; Luncheon Follows Morning Program.

WITH a charm of manners, and a gaiety of speech which completely captivated his audience of 150 women, Rene Dussaq, speaker, told members of the Mansfield Federation of Women about South American and the South American attitude in his talk yesterday morning at the Ohio theater. He was introduced by Mrs. Lester Redding, Federation president, when he spoke on "A South American's View of South America."

In an effort to show the difference rather than the similarities between the United States and South America, Dussaq emphasized the fact that our southern neighbors are still living 20 years ago, and that even though the U. S. is being very amicable to South America now, there is a time when she wasn't.

Latin America has not as yet forgotten the presence of U. S. marines to protect American business.

Dussaq, a native Argentinian, was educated in Europe, and has traveled widely throughout North and South America and Europe, gaining his impressions for lectures on his native land.

Continuing his discussion he explained that the fear of German infiltration and occupation is no new thing — the South American republics have been fearing it since 1902. He also told his audience just how the German issue is shaping up. He explained that in an effort to appease and pacify the U. S. many of the South American countries have begun to harass people of German descent living in their countries, and as a result these German ancestry people are annoyed, and becoming pro-Nazi with a little help from Hitler agents.

He insisted that Americans have a tendency to believe that every country south of the Rio Grande is in constant revolution. This is true, but not in the true sense of a revolution of the people, for the people and by the people, but rather of one ruling class against another ruling class.

By way of concluding his lecture, which was followed by a question period, Dussaq told his audience that the United States should make a greater effort to understand South America in order to bring about truly favorable relationships, and that political loans between the two Americas should cease.

Mrs. Redding spoke briefly on the one mill levy for city operating expenses and announced the lecture by Eva Lips which will be given at the John Simpson auditorium tomorrow night under the auspices of B'Nai Brith.

A buffet style luncheon was served to members at the Women's Club following the lecture. The next program of the season will be another lecture-luncheon at 11 a. m. at the Madison theater. Gordon B. Enders will speak at that time on "Nowhere Else In the World."

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

WHETHER you call it rosewood, clay earth or one of many other names, the new rose-tan shade is one of the prettiest of the season. . . . It is being shown in many styles of dresses downtown now, and I saw three especially pretty ones while shopping yesterday.

Marianne

One of a new shaded corduroy material had a lustrous finish that gave it a more dressy appearance than usual corduroy. . . . It was fashioned with a full gored skirt, tailored neckline, zipper front closing and shirring on the shoulders. . . . In silk crepe was another dress of this color, which featured a high neckline, buttoned back and gold studded leather belt. . . . A two-piece model silk crepe dress, also in this tone had a gathered waistline, fastening in the back, and a pocket on the bodice trimmed with a pearled design.

Newest in the ranks of novelty jewelry are those wooden pins carved to resemble donkeys and elephants. . . . These little pins are made from light-colored wood—some showing just the heads of the animals and others the whole body. . . . They're all brightened with dashes of colorful paint and most of them have quite comical expressions. And while we're speaking of wooden jewelry, I mustn't forget to tell you about the necklaces made from large, round wooden beads, painted in such colors as blue, green and purple.

• • •

If you're looking for a new house robe, you'll be delighted with those of baby chenille that one of the local stores is showing now. . . . The tufts of this chenille are smaller and the rows closer together than the regular type, and they're put on in graceful swirling designs. . . . These can be purchased in white, raspberry, dusty rose and royal blue. . . . Bed jackets of this same material also are attractive, and they come in peach, sky blue, white and dusty rose.

• • •

THERE are all kinds of purses on the market this season, but you can never go far wrong in selecting a conservative one for all-round general wear. . . . Of this type, the best looking ones I've seen in a long time are made from either lambskin, goatskin or alligator calf. They are obtainable in black, brown and wine in a variety of shapes and styles—some being trimmed with grosgrain ribbon and others with gold.

• • •

No more searching for your nail polish in one place, your fingernail file in another, and your nail white in still another. Now you can put an end to this confusion with one of the new nail essential kits that one of the leading women nail polish manufacturers has just introduced. . . . Some are of leather and others of silk crepe. There are zipper and snap closing styles, and one kit is even decorated with a little clip that can be removed and worn on dresses. . . . All of them contain nail polish, polish remover, polish base, emery boards, file, orange wood stick and cotton, and they're as attractive as they are practical, so you might buy one for a friend's birthday or Christmas when you get one for yourself.

YOU can bid goodbye to steam and water rings on your tables, because the new "hi-jacs" have put a stop to all such marks. . . . These dripless coasters fit over the bottom of all sizes of drinking glasses, because they're made of terri-knit lastex. They are absorbent and elastic, and come in a variety of colors to help you identify the glasses when they're re-filled.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

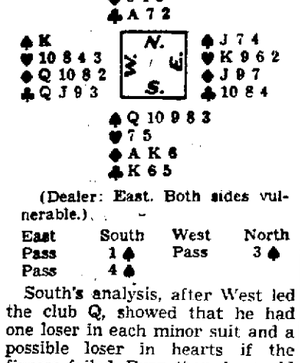
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CARELESSNESS COSTLY

Unsound reasoning costs plenty of tricks, but nothing like so many as carelessness. Practically all players guard themselves against dangers which seem probable, but the better ones also are willing to go out of their way to protect themselves against the most remote risks. As a consequence, they make a larger proportion of their contracts, and are just as well off relatively as if they held better cards.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

South's analysis, after West led the club Q, showed that he had one loser in each minor suit and a possible loser in hearts if the finesse failed. Even then, he could discard one of his minor suit losers on the dummy's third theart, leaving only one minor loser and one in hearts. He could therefore afford a single loser in trumps, but not two.

After this study, the declarer took the opening trick in the dummy and promptly led a small spade. East played low, South put on the Q and the K won. After that there was no earthly way to prevent East from winning a second trump trick with his J. The entire contract then depended upon whether the heart finesse was favorable. It was not, and so the loss of a trick there, plus one in the minors, beat South.

With this kind of situation, especially when holding the 10 in addition to the A and Q, the declarer's job is to use his A on the first round of the suit. If it drops either the K or J there is no remaining chance to lose more than one trick in the suit. If both players put on small cards, the declarer then can lead a small one from the dummy. If East follows suit at all, the contract is safe, regardless of whether his card is the J or the K. As it happens in this case, correct play would have kept the defenders from any trump tricks, and would have produced an overtrick.

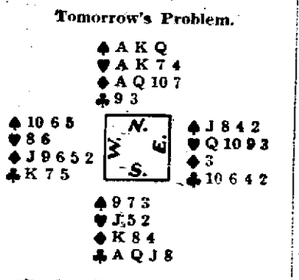
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If East had made suicidal bids first of clubs and later spades along the way, but South nevertheless gets into 6-No Trumps, West leading the spade 10, how should South plan his play?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"All right, Phil," she said as if she were talking to a small boy who was telling his troubles to her. "Tell us what answer you gave to Jack Leslie."

"I think you already have guessed my answer," he rejoined promptly. "I trust you will agree it was the only possible one I could have given under the circumstances. To have refused him would have resulted in my death and Otto's as well, and would have put an end to any possible aid I might be enabled to give the Chief."

"You're dead right there, Phil," Lillian interpolated — she rarely interrupts my father, and then only for an unusually good reason, but I do not know of anybody else in the world of whom she stands in any awe whatever.

"He probably had a half dozen of his guerillas concealed near the spot he named as a rendezvous," she went on, "and it would have been an easy matter to rub you and Otto out and then cart your bodies to his hideaway. You probably didn't tell anybody where you and Otto were going."

"No, I didn't," he admitted with a sort of small boy embarrassment in his manner which impishly delighted me.

"You're always being the high-hat Mogul who takes nobody into his confidence," Lillian retorted. "Well! this time, Phil, if you hadn't been foxy enough to pretend to agree to Jack Leslie's ultimatum, you wouldn't have been missed at your hotel for days, would you now?"

"I'm afraid I'm guilty as charged," he said.

"Of course you are," she went on relentlessly. "The troupe and the hotel people would simply have decided that you had taken the notion to absent yourself for a couple of days. By the time they got around to looking for you, the fish in the bay off Leslie's hideaway would have been nibbling on you and Otto.

"Don't be so — realistic!" he said, and she laughed, a comfortable, good-humored gust of cheeriness, that lightened the mental atmosphere materially.

"You mean 'Don't be so vulgah!'" she said, "and I'll admit I am sounding a bit off key, so forgive me and get on with your story."

"I'm glad you used that phrase 'pretend to agree' a minute ago," he said soberly, "for, though I do not deserve it, I would hate to have either of you think that I agreed with his terms only to save my own skin."

"I tried to be histrionically convincing in my demeanor," he said. "At first I registered horror and disbelief of his story, as well as reluctance to comply with what I termed his outrageous demand. But I watched him carefully the while to see that I did not anger him too much, for I knew from the first what I must do.

"Finally, when I saw it was no longer any use to protest, I pretended gradually to yield, and agreed to get a footing in the farmhouse, and to admit to it the messenger whom he should send later. He said the messenger would have full oral instructions for me, and that I was to follow faithfully the instructions he should give me."

Lillian leaned forward in her chair, her face and eyes alert.

"Just a minute, Phil" she interrupted, and I knew by her manner that she was pouncing upon something in his narrative which was vitally important. "By 'he' did Leslie mean himself or the messenger?"

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, October 24

ACCORDING to particularly exciting astral influences this should be a lively and eventful day, especially in such operations as combine group interests, or political, fraternal or social collaboration for the common good and advancement. Such may lead to gratifying recognition, preferment or rewards for merit.

Those whose birthday it is have a forecast of a year of large operations, probably in connection with humanitarian or social groups, political or fraternal circles or other forward-looking bodies. Such might lead to happy public recognition of merit.

A child born on this day although having much talent and ambition for public welfare, with the endrosement and encouragement of those in place and power, yet may be carried away by bizarre notions of reform or altruism, which it may try to put over audaciously.

PERSONAL TAX PERIOD DELAYED

Mailing of Statements Held Up Pending Completion of Duplicate.

Richland county's personal tax collection for the last half of the year, scheduled to open this week, will not get under way until the first of next week, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today. Books will remain open one month.

The auditor said the classified tax duplicate had not been completed in his office and would not be turned over to the county treasurer until later this week.

The treasurer must mail statements to property owners after receiving the duplicate before he can open the tax books. He said the statements would go out this week if the duplicate is in his hands within the next two days.

The last half personal tax bill, covering levies on household goods, stocks and bonds, office and factory equipment, livestock and farm equipment, will amount to slightly more than $100,000 for the period, the auditor said.

A number of property holders paid ther personal tax for the full year during the first half collection last spring.

When the tax books open the auditor will place a number of deputies at desks in the courthouse corridor to help property owners fill out their tax returns.

Priorities Board Controls Industrial Defense Work

OBSTACLES IN ARMS OUTPUT CLEARED AWAY

Knudsen, Stettinius and Henderson Appointed on Committee.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The most powerful body for government control of industry in peacetime history was set up today to clear potential industrial obstacles from the path of defense production.

Acting under an act of congress passed June 28, President Roosevelt established by exceutive order a priorities board with authority to command industry to produce and deliver defensive materials ahead of goods previously ordered for private account or for export.

A few hours later the government, acting under a more recent presidential authorization, commandeered for the army air corps 110 warplanes built for Sweden by the Republic Aviation corporation, but never exported. The action, formally protested by the Swedish government, was taken on the grounds that the planes were "urgently needed" for advanced training purposes.

Although the priorities board is endowed with broad power to enforce complete right of way for defense orders, priorities administrator Donald M. Nelson, who is also co-ordinator of defense purchases, indicated that it would use the "velvet glove" rather than the "iron fist" to achieve its objectives.

He issued a statement emphasizing that establishment of the board "does not mean that a system of mandatory priorities on all national defense contracts will be instituted immediately." He said it was his intention to continue the "system of voluntary preference ratings."

The step taken by Mr. Roosevelt, he revealed, was recommended by the national defense commission.

Employers Urged To Give Jobs to Former Convicts

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The American Prison association renewed its congress here today, assured that its efforts to improve treatment of crime and criminals will increase this democracy's strength and degree of civilization.

Sanford Bates of the New York state board of parole quoted England's leader, Winston Churchill, as describing "the mood and temper of the public with regard to the treatment of crime and criminals" as an "unfailing test of the civilization of any country" and a "mark and measure of the stored up strength of a nation."

Bates attacked as "short-sighted" a "general unwillingness" on the part of employers to hire ex-convicts.

Every time an ex-convict or parolee commits another offense the blame rests with society as well as with the prisoner, he said.

Draft boards, which he explained may under present laws reject anyone convicted of felonies, should allow all ex-convicts to enlist in the army to redeem the wrongs they have done to society, he said.

Maid Admits Clubbing Mistress to Death

One Mansfield youth has learned "the hard way" that he will not be drafted into the armed forces of the United States. A few months ago, Frank Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Edwards, 110 West First street, enlisted in the navy and was sent to Great Lakes, Ill., for training. While going through drill, his leg showed signs of swelling and it became difficult for Edwards to walk. A check-up revealed that he had a broken cartilege, the result of a football injury a few years ago. Edwards was honorably discharged from the service and told that he couldn't serve in any branch of U. S. armed forces.

While this wasn't a very good apple year, there are trees that are loaded with fruit. Karl Goettl, 161 Maple street, brought a three-foot branch off one of his trees to The News-Journal office yesterday, which had 23 big apples on it. They were the old fashioned Maiden Blush variety — so named because the tint of red on pale yellow was supposed to represent a maiden's blush.

FINISHED OFF SLAYING WITH BUTCHER KNIFE

Girl Finally Has Own Way In Arrangement of Furniture.

NEW YORK—Betty Klempa, a house maid, finally had her way about arranging the furniture, but she had to kill her mistress to get it.

Today the blond, 19-year-old girl goes to homicide court. The mysterious murder eight days ago of Mrs. Leah Rubin, wife of a prominent physician, was solved by her confession. She said that in a row about placing the furniture, she clubbed Mrs. Rubin to the floor of her apartment with a baseball bat, then "finished" her with a butcher knife.

Police revealed that they had suspected her from the start, because the attack on Mrs. Rubin must have been ferocious, yet all the furniture was in place, giving no evidence of a struggle.

The story, as told in the confession, was this:

Miss Klempa, a slight, sharp-faced girl of Polish extraction, lived with her parents in Perth Amboy, N. J. She had been employed three years as a maid in the family of Dr. Eli H. Rubin, chief of the tuberculosis division of Montefiore hospital. She said Mrs. Rubin constantly nagged her, "criticizing the manner in which I handled my duties."

A week ago yesterday, shortly after noon, Mrs. Rubin scolded her about the placing of the furniture. Miss Klempa had picked up a bat belonging to nine-year-old Leonard Rubin, intending to put it in a closet. An impulse seized her and she hit Mrs. Rubin on the head with it. Mrs. Rubin fell. Miss Klempa ran to the kitchen, got a knife, returned and began stabbing the semi-conscious woman.

Mrs. Rubin screamed: "I am calling you, Betty, to stop it. Please stop it. I have two small children. What are you going to do to me? I've always been good to you."

Miss Klempa said she was afraid to stop after having gone so far. She stabbed until Mrs. Rubin was dead. Then she cleaned the knife and bat, put them in their proper places, straightened the furniture, bundled up her blood-stained clothing, got Mrs. Rubin's purse from the bedroom, toook out $5 and strewed the rest of the contents near the body to simulate a robbery, then went shopping.

She threw the bundle of clothing into a waste basket in a subway station and tore up the $5 and threw it in the street. Later she picked up the Rubin's six-year-old daughter, Susan, at a dancing school, took her home and pretended to discover the body.

Priorities Board Controls Industrial Defense Work

OBSTACLES IN ARMS OUTPUT CLEARED AWAY

Knudsen, Stettinius and Henderson Appointed on Committee.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The most powerful body for government control of industry in peacetime history was set up today to clear potential industrial obstacles from the path of defense production.

Acting under an act of congress passed June 28, President Roosevelt established by exceutive order a priorities board with authority to command industry to produce and deliver defensive materials ahead of goods previously ordered for private account or for export.

A few hours later the government, acting under a more recent presidential authorization, commandeered for the army air corps 110 warplanes built for Sweden by the Republic Aviation corporation, but never exported. The action, formally protested by the Swedish government, was taken on the grounds that the planes were "urgently needed" for advanced training purposes.

Although the priorities board is endowed with broad power to enforce complete right of way for defense orders, priorities administrator Donald M. Nelson, who is also co-ordinator of defense purchases, indicated that it would use the "velvet glove" rather than the "iron fist" to achieve its objectives.

He issued a statement emphasizing that establishment of the board "does not mean that a system of mandatory priorities on all national defense contracts will be instituted immediately." He said it was his intention to continue the "system of voluntary preference ratings."

The step taken by Mr. Roosevelt, he revealed, was recommended by the national defense commission.

"The setting up at present of adequate machinery of handling the priority question," he said, will be an important aid in preventing industrial confusion, particularly as the (defense) program broadens."

The board could, for the sake of illustration, tell a steel manufacturer to shunt aside a large order for steel rails from a railroad because the corporation's facilities were needed for immediate production of armor plate for battleships.

The board's personnel includes defense production Coordinator William S. Knudsen, materials Coordinator Edward R. Stettinius, jr., and price stabilization Coordinator Leon Henderson.

FINISHED OFF SLAYING WITH BUTCHER KNIFE

Girl Finally Has Own Way In Arrangement of Furniture.

NEW YORK—Betty Klempa, a house maid, finally had her way about arranging the furniture, but she had to kill her mistress to get it.

Today the blond, 19-year-old girl goes to nomicide court. The mysterious murder eight days ago of Mrs. Leah Rubin, wife of a prominent physician, was solved by her confession. She said that in a row about placing the furniture, she clubbed Mrs. Rubin to the floor of her apartment with a baseball bat, then "finished" her with a butcher knife.

Police revealed that they had suspected her from the start, because the attack on Mrs. Rubin must have been ferocious, yet all the furniture was in place, giving no evidence of a struggle.

The story, as told in the confession, was this:

Miss Klempa, a slight, sharp-faced girl of Polish extraction, lived with her parents in Perth Amboy, N. J. She had been employed three years as a maid in the family of Dr. Eli H. Rubin, chief of the tuberculosis division of Montefiore hospital. She said Mrs. Rubin constantly nagged her, "criticizing the manner in which I handled my duties."

A week ago yesterday, shortly after noon, Mrs. Rubin scolded her about the placing of the furniture. Miss Klempa had picked up a bat belonging to nine-year-old Leonard Rubin, intending to put it in a closet. An impulse seized her and she hit Mrs. Rubin on the head with it. Mrs. Rubin fell. Miss Klempa ran to the kitchen, got a knife, returned and began stabbing the semi-conscious woman.

Mrs. Rubin screamed: "I am calling you, Betty, to stop it. Please stop it. I have two small children. What are you going to do to me? I've always been good to you."

Miss Klempa said she was afraid to stop after having gone so far. She stabbed until Mrs. Rubin was dead. Then she cleaned the knife and bat, put them in their proper places, straightened the furniture, bundled up her blood-stained clothing, got Mrs. Rubin's purse from the bedroom, toook out $5 and strewed the rest of the contents near the body to simulate a robbery, then went shopping.

She threw the bundle of clothing into a waste basket in a subway station and tore up the $5 and threw it in the street. Later she picked up the Rubin's six-year-old daughter, Susan, at a dancing school, took her home and pretended to discover the body.
